Calm Continues In Chicago's Riot-Torn Area

CHICAGO (AP) — National Guard-imposed peace prevailed for the second straight night Saturday in Chicago's violence-scarred West Side Negro district. It seemed like a normal Saturday night—the streets crowded, but orderly—as 2,000 troops wearing helmets and carrying bayonet-tipped rifles went on patrol at dusk.

In contrast with Friday night, when residents seemed awed and even afraid at the show of force, the Guard was largely ignored.

Friday night 1,500 Guardsmen, mobilized after police said they couldn't control crowds up to 5,000 which had looted, burned, hurled rocks and fired shots since Tuesday night, put an abrupt end to the disturbances with their businesslike patrols. The streets were quiet Saturday.

Little Hostility
Aside from a few jibes, the troops for the second night encountered little hostility.

A Negro in his 30s, standing by a supermarket window, gave a newsman a representative comment:

"I was out all last night keeping kids I know from trouble. This wasn't a racial thing. These kids were just mad. I was mad, too, mad enough to fight. But I won't fight the guard. I respect those uniforms and so do the kids I was with."

A Negro in his late teens, who said he was a member of a youth gang, was asked what young people were angry about. "The issue is not police or whites," he said. "We want more basketball courts. We want more swimming pools."

Saturday, with just a token force moving around in the 140-square block area, the scene appeared normal. Pedestrian and vehicular traffic flowed as usual. Block after block broken glass littered the sidewalks, and charred stores and homes testified to looting and burning.

Patrol Streets
Fifteen hundred Guardsmen of a force of 3,000 called up Friday, backed by 1,000 police, rolled through the district starting at dusk—with orders to shoot to kill if fired upon. They packed pistols and bayonet-tipped rifles or carbines.

There were only sporadic incidents—a few burnings, a sniper shot or two, a rash of curfew arrests.

"We were not fired upon and had to fire at no one," said Maj. Gen. Francis Kane, commander of the 33rd Infantry Division.

Kane told a Saturday morning news conference he believes gangs of youngsters were to blame, saying, "They are playing games of cops and robbers and instead of using imaginary cops they are using the real thing."

He scheduled a force of 2,000 for patrol Saturday night. He called the Guard a significant factor in Friday night's calm and said it will not be disbanded until "complete normalcy is returned to the area."

A few stones were tossed. There was some cat-calling: "Bang, bang!" "Go home!" and "Big bad soldier!" came from curbside observers.

"Come Too Late"
But others welcomed the guard. "We're all glad as hell you're out here," said one Negro. "But you should have been here last night."

That was Thursday night, when violence and destruction hit its peak in what has been the worst outbreak since the Los Angeles race rioting of last August.

Two Negroes were killed by stray bullets and 30 injured Thursday night and Friday morning as a crowd estimated at 5,000 thronged the streets, with widespread looting, burning, shooting and rock throwing.

The rioting began Tuesday night when police turned off a fire hydrant where Negro children were cooling themselves during a hot spell.

Fifty-one persons were arrested Friday compared with 282 Thursday night.

YOUNG BROTHERS DROWN IN LAKE

CALUMET CITY, Ill. (AP) — Two young brothers drowned Saturday while wading in Green Lake during a church outing at a forest preserve at 159th and Torrence.

The boys, Willy Weaver, 12, and his brother, Jeffery, 7, both of Chicago, wandered away from the supervised area with a third boy, Wayne Price also from Chicago.

All of the youths went under, but Price was pulled from the water by John Clinton, 19, of East Chicago, Ind. Clinton was not able to save the brothers, police said.

The bodies were recovered by fire department units from Dolton.

The Weaver brothers lived at 3532 So. State in Chicago.

Ex-Convict Sought For Chicago Slayings

Fingerprints, Photo Point To Suspect

CHICAGO (AP) — A coast-to-coast hunt began Saturday for a tattooed ex-convict named in a murder warrant as the methodical butcher of eight student nurses.

Police Supt. O. W. Wilson said fingerprints lifted from the blood-splattered town house where the massacre occurred last Thursday matched those of Richard F. Speck.

Miss Corazon Amuro, the only survivor of the massacre, also identified Speck from a coin-machine photograph.

Police found the photo in files at the Maritime Union Hall, a block from the town house, where they said Speck had tried a few days before the murders to get a job on a boat sailing down the Mississippi River to New Orleans.

Warrant Issued
An hour after the state warrant was signed charging Speck with murder, a federal warrant was issued charging unlawful flight. This authorized the FBI to join the hunt.

Wilson Arrives For 3-Day Meet With Russians

MOSCOW (AP) — British Prime Minister Harold Wilson arrived in Moscow on Saturday to make new efforts at bringing peace to Viet Nam despite the failure here of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi of India.

Mrs. Gandhi, who left an hour before Wilson arrived, told a news conference that Soviet leaders had turned down her proposal to reconvene the 1954 Geneva peace conference.

Soviet Premier Alexi N. Kosygin, talking separately to reporters, said he explained to her "our position—that American aggression should be stopped and all foreign troops withdrawn."

Wilson announced his three-day Moscow visit after American bombings of oil facilities in the Hanoi and Haiphong areas produced Soviet warnings that the Vietnamese war had entered a new and dangerous phase.

So far, the Kremlin has indicated no interest in talking peace in Viet Nam with Wilson, and has treated his visit as the sole purpose were his tour Sunday of the British Trade Fair.

The prime minister was given a minimal welcome, ostensibly because he is making a working visit. Kosygin turned out to greet him and a British spokesman said later the leaders talked for 45 minutes riding in from the airport.

Solons Execution Of POWs Means Escalation

WASHINGTON (AP) — It became increasingly apparent Saturday that should Hanoi execute captured American fliers President Johnson would be brought under intense pressure to destroy North Viet Nam—even at the risk of bringing on an all-out conventional war.

This probability was under-scored by the grim statements of several senators.

The hard-line sentiment was typified by Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga. and chairman of the Armed Services Committee, who warned Hanoi leaders that executions "will bring about the application of power that will make a desert of their country."

Others used terms nearly as strongly—and going, by implication, far beyond earlier demands for heavier bombing of military targets and closing of the port of Haiphong.

It was learned that the United States has told Hanoi through unspecified diplomatic channels that any trials would be a very grave action.

Whatever the President might feel compelled to do in ordering short of nuclear war retaliation, it is the private opinion of some influential congressional leaders that if they execute American fliers the North Vietnamese will have shot down the last hope for effective domestic support of a negotiated peace without military victory.

That was the consensus behind the unusual appeal by 18 Senate Democratic doves Friday to the Hanoi government not to abandon "the last remnants of reason" and thus invite "the gravest reprisals."

Twelve House Democrats Saturday joined in supporting the senators' statement.

Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt., who has opposed escalation of the war, predicted that if the prisoners are killed "the American people will demand the complete destruction of North Viet Nam."

In a statement read to the Senate by Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, the 18 senators said (Turn to Page Nine)

The fugitive was described as a white man, 25 years old, 6 feet 1, 160 pounds, blue eyes, light brown hair. The description matched in its essentials the one given to police earlier by Miss Amuro.

Speck also was said to have tattoos on both arms. One tattoo says, "born to raise hell."

Speck has a long police record in Texas, where he served two terms in the penitentiary. The second term ended June 2, 1965. While on parole after his first term, Texas police records show, Speck was found guilty of threatening a 28-year-old woman with a butcher knife. The incident occurred Jan. 29, 1965.

Sought In Monmouth
Monmouth, Ill. police said Speck also was wanted for questioning there in connection with the murder of a barmaid last April. Speck has a brother in Monmouth and had been questioned by police there after a series of burglaries.

Texas prison records list Speck's wife and mother at a Dallas address. A woman at the address, who said she was Speck's stepmother, said none of the family had seen him in four months.

Chicago Police Supt. Wilson said his detectives had found 32 fingerprints at the house which he said were Speck's.

He said the print used to identify him was taken from the wooden door of the bedroom where the nine girls had been herded and trussed, and eight of them dragged by the killer one by one to their deaths in other rooms of the house. The eight were strangled and stabbed repeatedly.

The ninth, Miss Amuro, saved her life by wriggling under a bunk bed during one of the killer's absences.

Stayed In City
Wilson said Speck was seen in Chicago as late as 9 p.m. Friday. He was registered at a hotel on North Dearborn Street near Chicago's Loop—more than 10 miles from the scene of the massacre.

"He might have left the city after seeing in the newspapers what was virtually a portrait of him," Wilson said.

He referred to a police artist's sketch drawn from Miss Amuro's description of the killer.

Wilson said police files show that Speck had worked at various times as a laborer, trucker's helper, bakery worker and construction helper. He also was known by the aliases of Richard Franklin Lindberg and Richard Benjamin Speck.

Native of Monmouth
Records in Monmouth, Ill., showed a Richard Franklin Speck was born there 25 years ago. Speck's brother in Monmouth said Speck had spent his childhood there and left 14 years ago when his mother moved to Texas after her husband's death.

The brother said he and Speck also have a sister in Chicago. Another sister lives in Dallas with her mother, Mary Margaret Speck Lindberg.

If Speck should return to Monmouth, his brother said, "I'll turn him in."

Body Snatcher Caught By Police After Two Years

SKOKIE, Ill. (AP) — An 18-year-old youth was arrested Saturday after he boasted of the bizarre theft of a young girl's body from a funeral home two years ago.

Police Chief Kenneth B. Chamberlain said Carlos S. Villa, of Evanston, was arrested at a dance in nearby Deerfield after two teen-age girls told detectives he had boasted to them about the crime. He was charged with burglary.

Theresa Koertgen, 14, of Skokie died July 22, 1964 of a cerebral hemorrhage. Two days later her body, clad in a yellow dress she had worn to her elementary school graduation, was lifted from its casket in the Haben Funeral Home.

Funeral services were held the following day in St. Peter's Roman Catholic Church with the body missing. A natifalque body (Turn to Page Nine)

Great Britain In Grips Of Huge Economic Crisis

LONDON (AP) — Britain is gripped by one of its worst economic crises in two decades, but it doesn't show.

This "swinging" island kingdom is enjoying full employment and steadily rising wages. Shops are filled with foreign and domestic goods.

Night clubs and theaters and the latest import from the United States, the Playboy Club, are jammed. So are gambling casinos. Betting shops report business is fine and race tracks are crowded.

View Is Deceptive
All the signs of booming prosperity are there.

And that's the problem Prime Minister Harold Wilson faces: how to bring home to the British people their dire economic straits.

Repeated appeals for a return to "The Spirit of Dunkerque" have gone unheeded and Wilson was forced to clamp down last week the tightest credit squeeze since World War II. But financial experts say it isn't enough. Wilson warned the nation Thursday further drastic measures will follow shortly and said before leaving for Moscow Saturday that a "prepared package" will be presented when he returns Tuesday.

What's wrong?
Britain is a highly industrialized, trading nation. It depends for its living on the sale abroad of the product of its factories. But many factories have been slow to modernize; workers have opposed installation of labor-saving machinery, and restrictive practices by management and union have become almost commonplace.

The result: prices of British goods have soared in an increasingly competitive world market.

At the same time the breakup of the old British Empire left this country with a host of military and economic assistance commitments around the world that cost Britain $1.4 billion a month.

Wilson said Speck was seen in Chicago as late as 9 p.m. Friday. He was registered at a hotel on North Dearborn Street near Chicago's Loop—more than 10 miles from the scene of the massacre.

Miss Sweden Crowned Miss Universe 1966

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A typical Nordic beauty, blonde, blue-eyed Margareta Arvidsson of Sweden, was crowned Miss Universe Saturday night.

The 18-year-old photographer's model was picked from among 58 of the most beautiful girls in the world at the end of a week of pageantry.

First runner-up was Miss Finland, Satu Charlotta Ostrin, 19. Miss Thailand, Cherranand Savetanan of Bangkok, was second runner-up.

Miss India, Yasmin Daji, was third runner-up while Miss Israel, Aviva Israeli rounded out the top five.

Wilson said Speck was seen in Chicago as late as 9 p.m. Friday. He was registered at a hotel on North Dearborn Street near Chicago's Loop—more than 10 miles from the scene of the massacre.

"He might have left the city after seeing in the newspapers what was virtually a portrait of him," Wilson said.

Allied Task Force Slashes Red Units

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — U.S. Marines and government troops slashed at Communist units just south of the 17th Parallel Saturday while fresh waves of U.S. jets sought out missile sites, truck convoys and other targets north of the border.

Helicopters supported a task force of several thousand men in a sweep called Operation Hastings, launched at dawn Friday.

The Marines said they have counted 62 Communist dead and believed 56 others have been killed. Their own casualties were reported light. But five helicopters have crashed, two from enemy fire.

Aide Is Optimistic
U.S. Navy Secretary Paul H. Nitze, winding up a six-day tour of Viet Nam, contributed to a flow of optimistic statements voiced lately by both South Vietnamese and American officials.

"The progress in all phases of our Navy and Marine operations has been much more dramatic than I expected before I left Washington. Everywhere the effort is expanding in scope, numbers and effectiveness."

American pilots maintained over North Viet Nam the intensified aerial campaign marked Friday by a record high of 121 missions, assignments ordinarily executed by two to four planes.

Objectives that day included six missile sites, from seven to 45 miles from Hanoi, and three widely separated oil depots. Two of the missile sites were written off as destroyed.

U.S. Air Force raiders who struck at 31 staging and storage areas near Dong Hoi, 40 miles north of the border, reported they had set off more than 50 fires and 27 secondary explosions such as would come from ignited stocks of oil or ammunition.

Against a Hanoi claim that seven planes had been shot down, the U.S. command stuck by its announcement at the time that one was lost. This was a Navy A4 Skyhawk, the 291st American plane acknowledged destroyed in the 17-month-old campaign.

Skyhawk Lost
A spokesman said Navy planes had eluded 10 Soviet-built missiles during the attacks on the missile sites, but anti-aircraft artillery got the Skyhawk. The pilot bailed out. Pilots of rescue craft reported they could not reach him because of heavy flak and he might have been captured.

Union Charges Cause Break-Up In Strike Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — A union accusation that Northwest Airlines is improperly soliciting passengers for military charter flights interrupted Saturday the talks aimed at ending the airline strike.

Asst. Secretary of Labor James J. Reynolds, presiding over the negotiations, said the new charges made it impracticable to hold joint negotiations Saturday.

He asked the opposing parties, the AFL-CIO International Association of Machinists and the five airlines struck by the union July 8, to meet with him again Sunday morning.

Reynolds said he would insist that both sides proceed with negotiations "regardless of whether this matter has been changed or corrected to the satisfaction of the union."

Calls 20th Century 'Age Of No Religion'

By JAMES F. DONOHUE
CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — A Harvard theologian, Dr. Harvey Cox, says the 20th century is "an age of no religion at all."

"All supernatural 'myths and sacred symbols' have been broken, he says, and man has been left alone 'with the world on his hands.'"

For Cox, this is an age of secularism, and in his book, "The Secular City," he offers "a celebration of its liberties."

This is an age, said Cox in an interview, in which man can free himself from his religious prejudices "to turn his attention away from worlds beyond and toward this world and this time. . . . and step into God's permanent revolution in history."

"The mission of the church," he says, "is to be involved in the renewal of the world."

Cox, 37, associate professor of church and society at Harvard, has been placed among the "God Is Dead" theologians in some recent newspaper and magazine articles.

God is not dead, he says, "and God does make a difference in the way men live."

Cox contends, however, that God has changed his way of dealing with man. Cox says God has withdrawn from the world, leaving its affairs to man.

"Man must now assume the responsibility for his world," he says. "He can no longer shove it off on some religious power. 'The question is: What is the reality of God? What is his intention in human affairs? How is man to bear witness to God?'"

Cox uses the traditional Protestant concept of witness—the Christian giving visible evidence of his belief.

But for Cox the traditional witness of preaching and churchgoing is no longer enough. He sees this as an age of social upheaval, and he says the Christian must offer witness "whenever he sees injustice in the world."

He urges Christians to break away from the established churches into "a kind of ascetic disaffiliation" so that they may do "God's work in the present social revolution."

Reither On Beardstown

By VIRGIL REITHER
BEARDSTOWN — One of Beardstown's most noted experts with drawing implements, John (Bud) Anderson and family have been here for a few days visiting Rufus Vernon and family. They have left California and are to live in Effingham where Bud will do layouts for a large printing firm. While in California Mr. Anderson gave art demonstrations on TV.

He started here as a sign painter after graduating from high school in 1934.

A number of local establishments, including the Arrow restaurant, have Anderson's stylish murals on their walls. He did a number of scenes of the Illinois river and the fishing and boating industries here.

Anderson married the former Chris Treadway of this city.

Move To Sparta
The Joe Bertetto's have vacated their home at 1015

Washington street and have moved to Sparta. A big moving van transported their furniture Wednesday. Bertetto, a drag line operator for Peabody Coal, has been assigned to duty in the Belleville area now that Peabody has discontinued operations in Schuyler county.

Several other Beardstown families were involved in the move also. At least four operators for the company lived here during the 10 years the mines at Pleasant View were in operation.

Agent Transferred
Jack Gray of 1209 State street, special agent for the C.B. & Q. railroad company here for the past 10½ years, has been notified of his transfer to Centralia. Mrs. Gray has been working at the First National bank here. The transfer is effective immediately.

Beardstown Youngsters Have 'Cool' Occupation

BEARDSTOWN — Although the great majority of Beardstown mussel shellers have moved to Rock Island and vicinity to "ply their trade," maintaining there are no longer good supplies of shells in the Illinois river, it was evident here Wednesday that there still is a supply, meager though it may be.

At first sight it appears that the boys wading and diving in the Illinois river just below the C.B. & Q. railroad bridge may be combining business with pleasure.

N. GREENE HIGH HEAD RESIGNS, 20 POSITIONS OPEN

WHITE HALL — The resignation of Kenneth Kern as North Greene High School Principal was accepted by the Board at their regular meeting on Wednesday evening. Mr. Kern has been here for two years, both as high school principal and no reason was given for his resignation.

James Springs, new superintendent of the North Greene Unit attended this meeting, and noted that about 20 positions remain to be filled, which is the most important business at this time.

Other resignations accepted were that of Mrs. Eileen Cunningham as the educable mentally handicapped teacher; Terry Howell, junior high teacher and assistant coach, and Junius Durham, social studies teacher and high school baseball coach.

The open positions of track and baseball coach were filled by the Board, with Phillip Hopkins, who was recently appointed varsity football coach also serving as varsity track coach. Franklin Hartweg, also recently hired as head basketball coach, will be head baseball coach.

Various other items of business were handled by the Board, including repairs to a leaking roof at the Junior High building, installation of metal windows in the hall area on the second floor and a discussion of the possibility of the county and schools combining and hiring a full time coordinator for Title 1, and other Federal Aid Programs, although no action was taken on this latter item.

Snakes In Hibernation, Say The Oldtimers, Means Dry Summer

By ARTHUR THATCHER

JERSEYVILLE—This has been a season without any big snake stories. The reason? Several Jersey county old timers have the explanation. It's the dry season and the springtime instinct of most local reptiles that a drouth was in the offing that caused the various snake families to keep close to their former winter hibernation quarters.

At any rate, there are mighty few snakes around during the present hot dry weather. Jerseyville street department workers as a rule encounter a number of snakes while moving grass and weeds alongside the city highways, but a checkup this week reveals very few snakes have been found during the current moving season.

Several weeks ago, Eugene Ridenbark operated the city moving machine and during the round of moving at that time, his sickle cut into only one medium size blacksnake.

During the week of July 11-16 he reported no snakes were in the highway grass in Jerseyville.

Chief Deputy Sheriff Hargiss Maholland who has traveled literally thousands of miles serving both civil and criminal writs for the Jersey County Sheriff's Office, when questioned about observing any snakes along the highways, killed or in the act of crossing the roads in the Jersey county locality stated that he has observed almost none this season.

Few On Roadways

"You usually see a lot of them while driving along the country roads," Maholland stated, "but I've seen very few this summer."

An interview with several old timers who were boys during the great drouth in this section of Illinois in 1901 and young men at the time of the 1913 "burn out" in Central Illinois remembered that snakes, toads and terrapins of the land kind were not on hand during those years.

Dry April To Sept. 17

Jersey county records reveal that in 1901 the last shower in the Jerseyville area was on April 11th and the next one arrived September 17th. Water was at a premium for drinking and cooking purposes. Well at that time were of the hand dug variety and did not extend any deeper than forty or fifty feet with now and then an eighty footer being recorded. There were no local well drilling rigs. Livestock was sold before the end of midsummer with the exception of one or two milch cows for family milk and butter production, and a brood sow or two. Water was hauled by wagon and horse power in barrels from carefully husbanded supplies, often many miles away.

Dust of 1913

The 1913 dry season was the one accompanied by the great chinch bug invasion Charles Mourning, local real estate dealer recalled.

"I was farming in the Jerseyville locality at that time," Mourning stated. "The farmers used dust barriers to keep the millions of chinch bugs from passing from one field into an adjoining area."

"I experimented with constantly cultivating my corn field and kept a loose dust mulch between the corn rows. This seemed to cause what little moisture remained in the earth to come to the surface. At any rate, I was lucky enough to produce about fifty bushels of corn to the acre. The dust mulch seemed to retard the chinch bugs that might get into the field just as the dust barriers worked at the edges of fields."

Jerseyville records also indicate that the years of 1934 and 1936 were plenty dry with water very scarce before adequate rainfall finally arrived.

Chicago Livestock Market Report

CHICAGO (AP)—The market for butcher hogs finished the week on three consecutive days of decline after reaching a peak of $26.25 a hundredweight on Tuesday and Wednesday. However, it finished steady to 25 cents higher than last week.

The week's run of 19,500 compared with 16,500 for the four trading days of the previous holiday week.

At the end of the week the best price was down to $25.50. The average price of $24.90 compared with $24.69 the previous week and $24.79 a year ago.

Slaughter steers closed the week steady to 25 cents lower despite a good recovery on Friday. They averaged about $24.90 a hundredweight, only the second time in more than a year at less than $25. It compared with $25.47 the previous week and $23.63 last year.

The scant offerings of spring slaughter lambs were steady.

New York Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP)—Concern about stiff interest rates and the dragging-on hostilities in Viet Nam accompanied a stock market decline last week.

As U.S. Treasury bonds slipped to their lowest prices in 40 years and the general run of interest rates advanced to their highest levels in a generation, stocks reacted.

"The stock market is finding it hard to live with the money market," said one analyst.

The British bank rate was raised to 7 per cent from 6 per cent Thursday and Wall Street feared the next step would be an advance in the discount rate above the current 4 1/2 per cent by the Federal Reserve Board.

The "fed," however, did not take such action last week. Even if it did, analysts said, it would merely be following action taken by the banks — in effect, ratifying an existing condition.

The boost in the British bank rate was so well anticipated the stock market actually rose after it became apparent prices were not particularly affected by the move. It was a question of getting bad news out of the way, brokers said.

The Viet Nam situation did not play a distinct role. It depressed stocks when Defense Secretary Robert McNamara said he saw nothing to lead him to hope for an early end of the war and announced he was cutting back outlays for air munitions and reviewing production rates of other kinds of military equipment.

The Dow Jones industrial average last week declined 4.68 to 889.36.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks fell 3.0 to 320.8. Both averages enjoyed a good rise in the previous week.

Volume for the week was 29,012,198 shares, compared with 24,806,710 for the four-day trading week previous, cut short by the July 4 holiday.

Of 1,573 issues traded during the week, 794 fell and 824 rose. New low price levels were established in virtually all sectors of the bond market. U.S. Treasury bonds skidded to their lowest prices in 40 years.

Brighten Fairgrounds

A number of 4-H leaders and members met at the Scott County Fairgrounds for a work session Friday. A new coat of paint was given several buildings and all buildings and grounds received a general clean up preparation for the annual I.R.E.C. meeting, to be held July 18 and 19.

Last week the 4-H Federation and 4-H members planted 21 seedless green ash, sugar maple, red maple, river birch and flowering crapapple trees as part of the proposed landscape for the fairgrounds.

The landscape plan, designed by Farm Adviser George Myers, calls for additional planting to be done in the fall.

Following the Friday evening work session, the group had a watermelon feast, then were entertained at a swimming party, sponsored by the fair board at the Winchester pool.

Task Force

The American - Vietnamese ground operation centered 7 to 10 miles below the demilitarized zone, which blankets the border at the 17th Parallel. South Viet Nam committed a regiment-sized force of infantry, marines, paratroopers, armored units and artillery totalling 2,000 or 3,000 men.

At least two battalions of U.S. Marines — each of which could run from 800 to well over 1,000 men — were involved.

A dispatch filed by Associated Press correspondent Bob Gassaway from that area said Communist troops almost surrounded one of the American battalions for a time Friday, but artillery barrages were called in to beat them back.

Lt. Gen. Lewis W. Walt, commander of U.S. Marines in Viet Nam, said he expects the tempo of fighting to increase.

The campaign is in the Cam Lo sector, 20 miles west of Quang Tri city, where U.S. B52 jets staged three saturation bombings in as many days last week against the reported stamping grounds of 4,500 to 5,000 Communist troops.

Ten miles farther west, Communist ground fire downed a U.S. Marine F4B Phantom fighter. Both crewmen bailed out and were rescued within 15 minutes by helicopters. The loss of the Phantom brought to 116 the number of planes announced shot down in South Viet Nam.

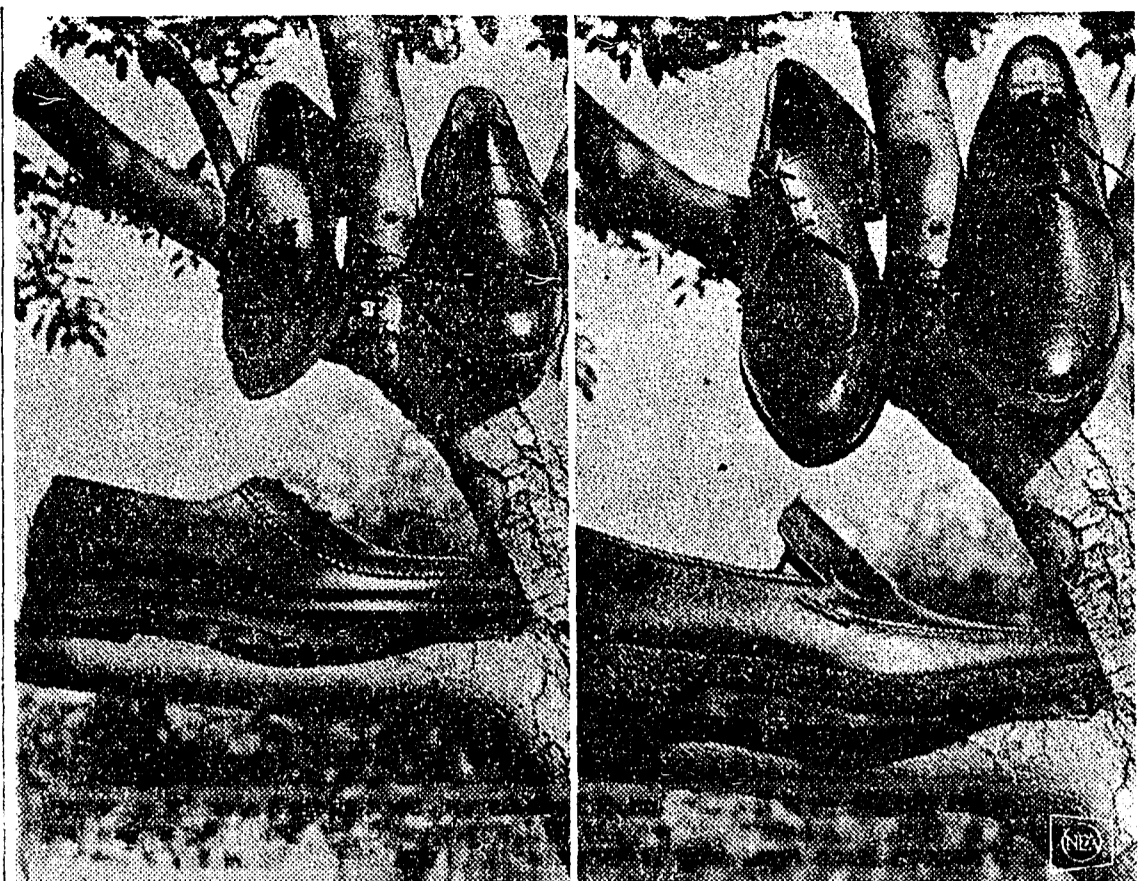

Among other military developments:
Two battalions of government troops rushed in pursuit of about 500 Viet Cong who had ambushed and mauled a Vietnamese company guarding a supply convoy on Highway 13 about 18 miles northwest of Saigon. Unofficial sources said most of the company's 100 men were killed or wounded.

The guerrillas staged two hit-and-run attacks within eight miles of Saigon. In one the Viet Cong blew up a bridge south of the capital. In the other, a government spokesman said, they inflicted light casualties and damaged several vehicles in a strike at a national police post northeast of town.

The U.S. command announced the termination of El Paso 2, a sweep launched June 2 by units of the 1st Infantry Division about 45 miles northwest of Saigon. The division reported the troops had killed 855 of the enemy, captured 27 and seized 206 weapons. Communist supplies that fell into their hands included 1,600 tons of rice.

Calm

Newsmen who interviewed Negroes on the streets noted an attitude of fear among many. There was much comment about the weapons carried by the heavily armed Guard.

But there were some who said the Guard will leave sooner or later and that trouble will come anew.

Gov. Otto Kerner called up the 3,000 Guardsmen Friday morning after Mayor Richard J. Daley said police appeared unable to cope with the outbreak. At the time, daylight looting and burning were under way.

Half of the Guardsmen were held in reserve at armories Friday night.

Top police officials expressed hope that an 11th-hour agreement between Daley and Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. would ease tensions in the area.

King held an unscheduled huddle with the mayor Friday and they worked out this program:

Spray nozzles will be installed on fire hydrants to permit children to sprinkle themselves in hot weather.
Construction of swimming pools and creation of parks on the West Side will be speeded.

Democratic ward committees will be instructed to assign two local West Side residents in each precinct to help calm disorders.
The mayor will appoint a citizens committee to recommend ways for improving police-community relations.

King told a newsman Saturday: "I think the rioting is over." He said he talked to gang leaders Friday night and "they said they are going to try nonviolence."

Manhunt Begun
The massacre, one of the most hideous mass murders in the memory of veteran police officers, shocked the city and the nation and touched off a determined manhunt as well as round-the-clock efforts by crime lab technicians.

Chief of Detectives Otto Kreuzer said the FBI sent a messenger to Chicago with Speck's record, photograph and fingerprints as soon as his identity was learned.

When Miss Amuroa looked at the FBI photo she said: "This is very similar, the lips and all that. All except the hair."

The FBI photo showed a man with hair longer than Miss Amuroa had described for the police artist.

Young, Collins Set For Gemini Launch

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — "Frankly, the mission has everything in it but the kitchen sink. It should be three days jam-packed with interesting operations."

That was Navy Cmdr. John W. Young describing the flight to Gemini 10, scheduled to start Monday afternoon from Cape Kennedy.

Young and his spacewalking companion, Air Force Maj. Michael Collins, are to rocket skyward at 5:21 p.m. EST to start a space adventure that calls for:

A rendezvous and linkup with an Agena satellite to be launched 100 minutes earlier than Gemini 10.

A trick rendezvous with a "dead bird" satellite—an Agena left in space after the Gemini 8 flight last March.

Two Space Walks
Two 55-minute work sessions outside the orbiting space ship by Collins.

stood in place of a casket. It was flanked by six tall, black candle holders. The pallbearers stood nearby.

The solemn requiem high mass was celebrated by the girl's great-uncle, the Rev. Francis J. Niesen, then pastor of St. Joan of Arc church in Kokomo, Ind.

"Under the circumstances," Father Niesen said at the time, "it seemed the normal thing to do."

Nearly 500 persons attended the funeral mass. Many of them had learned of the weird theft, the rest were told in church.

The next morning the girl's body was found in an alley in Evanston, three miles from the chapel. The body was nude. A few days later the girl's yellow dress was found in an alley on the Northwest Side of Chicago. The day the body was found, it was interred with a simple ceremony.

Police sorted through hundreds of signatures on the funeral chapel register. They questioned a teen-ager who had been pestering the attractive, 5-foot-6 brunette for dates. They checked out leads on a man who had been seen loitering near the funeral chapel.

Skokie police said Savilla, a native of Cuba, has denied that he was the person who cut away a window screen, gained entrance to the chapel and stole the girl's body.

Evanston police said Savilla was on parole from a conviction for the sale of marijuana.

POWs

execution of the fliers "would drastically reduce the influence of all those in the United States who have tried to curtail the fighting."

This was a tacit admission by the so-called doves, as Church labelled the signers, that Hanoi could accomplish what Johnson himself has failed to do — silence most of them.

The Senate Democratic leader, Mike Mansfield of Montana, said in a statement execution of the captured fliers would be "an act of shocking and senseless cruelty which will reap its own harvest of retribution."

Like the 18 senators, Mansfield stressed his belief that such an act would make it extremely difficult to restore peace.

From the executive branch came another warning, by roving Ambassador W. Averell Harriman, for Hanoi.

Speaking on a Voice of America broadcast, Harriman said "One of the surest ways for it (Hanoi) to assure that the American public will stick to this thing to the end, no matter how long it takes, would be their mistreatment of our airmen."

Harriman added his belief that any drastic action against the pilot-prisoners would make it all but impossible for the United States to cooperate with North Viet Nam in any program of developing Southeast Asia after the war ends.

Against this background of troubled apprehension in Washington, Radio Hanoi sought world attention for a Sunday broadcast, hinting that it would have an important statement at 8:45 a.m. Hanoi time Sunday morning — 9:45 p.m. EDT Saturday night.

There was strong speculation that it would have to do with the American captives.

Justice Douglas, Young Wife Off On Honeymoon

LOS ANGELES (AP) — U.S. Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas and his youthful fourth bride embarked on a secluded honeymoon Saturday with a second honeymoon — to Red China — a possibility later this year.

"I'm already learning to speak Chinese," said the new Mrs. Douglas.

Douglas, 67, wed Cathleen Curran Heffernan, 23, Friday night at a friend's home in suburban Encino.

The couple checked out of a West Los Angeles hotel early Saturday. Douglas said they would honeymoon in the Pacific Northwest.

The jurist said he had been invited by the Communist Chinese government to visit Peking late this year.

In Washington, State Department officials confirmed they had received a request from Douglas for permission to visit Red China. No specific decision has been made, but permission was expected to be granted, officials said.

A long-time advocate of Red China's admission to the United Nations, Douglas also has urged demilitarization of the Nationalist Chinese stronghold of Formosa.

Washington officials said Douglas would have no problem getting U.S. permission to travel to China. The U.S. government recently dropped prohibitions on travel to Red China for such persons as newsmen, scholars and doctors. The Chinese, however, have not yet allowed any Americans in those professions to visit the mainland.

The wedding was the first for the blonde, blue-eyed college sociology major from Portland, Ore.

Douglas was divorced June 24 from his third wife, the former Joan C. Martin, 26, whom he married 2 1/2 years ago.

His second wife, the former Mercedes Hester, 18 years his junior, divorced him in 1963, after 10 years of marriage.

His first marriage, of 30 years, to the former Mildred Riddle, ended in divorce in 1953.

MAJOR LEAGUERS ARE HUMAN TOO

Major league ball players are a group apart from the ordinary citizen in many ways, but in others they are just like the guy next door. It's true they lead a special life, one any sports-minded male would trade his occupation for, in that they have travel, glamor and a good salary, but they are concerned with about the same things as you and I.

After spending about three hours in the same room with the 25 biggest stars in the National League, at the All-Star game Tuesday, this writer was quite amazed at how down-to-earth and friendly these major leaguers were.

The conversations in the small groups of ball players and writers ran from the heat to last-night's party, the airline strike, families, the newest jokes, and, of course, baseball. Hearing these fellows talk about baseball is not so much different than discussing the national pastime with a few friends; but when they came out with a statement, you didn't doubt that they knew what they were talking about.

Being the stars they are, all these players have images built mainly by the press, and the ordinary individual pictures them in just that manner. We quickly got the feeling that these pointed images are not necessarily true.

For instance, we did not feel Sandy Koufax was the loner, business-minded, quiet type he has been pictured to be. Numerous newspaper and magazine articles on Koufax, since he has risen to stardom in the past several seasons, have claimed him to be almost totally unconcerned with the game of baseball other than his performances. But, he was moving around the groups Tuesday, listening to and talking of anecdotes of the game that has put his salary well above six figures.

If a stranger were to ask Koufax what he did, you can bet he would answer, "big league pitcher." As for being a loner and self-centered, he certainly did not appear to be Tuesday.

Another example was Willie Mays. The great Willie, moving near the top in career home runs as well as holding numerous other records, is often pictured to be a quiet, slowly aging individual who is actually a sort of leader among major leaguers.

But unless Willie was just feeling his oats at the All-Star game, he didn't impress this reporter in that way. Mays was actually the biggest cut-up in the NL club house and gave the appearance of a rookie trying to impress his manager. However, Willie was certainly one of the most popular players in the group and well admired by all of them. Mays was also a very popular item with the reporters.

We were most impressed with the way Hank Aaron of the Atlanta Braves conducted himself. We never saw Aaron, Mr. Wrists of the hitting set, speak above a semi-whisper all afternoon, but was most cordial to all who wished to speak to him. Never touching a cigarette or any beverage all afternoon, Aaron sat at his dressing booth before and after the game.

In a very quiet but humorous manner, Aaron told an interesting story on San Francisco's Willie McCovey, who was standing in the group listening. "Willie grew up near where I did in Memphis, and being from a poor family, never had a glove. When he tried out for the high school team the coach gave him a glove. Willie put the glove on, but when the first ball was thrown to him, he caught it bare-handed and put it in his glove, evidently not knowing what the glove was for."

Casey Stengel, soon to enter the Hall of Fame in Cooperstown, N.Y., was another popular figure in the club house, and any stories you may have heard about how Casey likes to talk about baseball are certainly true. "Charles," as the players and reporters addressed him, was ready and willing to take on all comers.

One writer told a story on Stengel about an incident that occurred two years ago when the Cardinals were in the World Series, illustrating how well Casey likes to talk baseball.

He said Stengel was in a St. Louis hotel's bar with some avid listeners, and evidently got carried away with his talk as well as his favorite beverage. The place was supposed to close at 1 a.m., but the owner finally got Casey out at 3:30 a.m.

We also noticed that the Giants' great right hander Juan Marichal was probably the most left-alone player in the club house. Whether this was because of his now infamous bat-swinging fracas with the Dodgers' John Roseboro last year, or of his own desire we don't know.

No doubt every big league ball player has his own personal likes and dislikes, and probably no two are completely alike in their personality. But most of the time they are not too unlike the fellow you meet on the street, except for their occupation.

They, too, have their heroes, likes and dislikes and hobbies the same as the next guy. The only difference is, they do something that most of us feel would be one of the most glamorous businesses to be in, and who's to say it isn't?

It's similar to what an old coach used to say, "They put their pants on one leg at a time just like you do."

HERE 'N' THERE: On experience, Jim Buckley has to be the favorite in today's playoff in the championship round of the annual Nichols Park Open Golf Tournament. Buckley meets Jim Blesse for 18 holes at 9:30 a.m. and 18 more at 1:30 today. Buckley says he has been in the finals of the event about 13 times, and adds, "I'm embarrassed to say I was in the finals 29 years ago."

Nichols Barges Into Front At Minnesota Meet

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) —

Bobby Nichols shot a five-under-par 66 Saturday to barge into the 54-hole lead in the $100,000 Minnesota Golf Classic.

Nichols' three-round total of 200, 13 under par, wrestled the lead from Jacky Cupit, who shot a two-over-par 37 on the back nine Saturday and came in at 202.

Nichols was behind Cupit by three strokes at the start of the third round over Keller Golf course.

Third was Dan Sikes, who also shot a 66 Saturday for 203. U.S. Open champion Billy Casper ballooned to a two-over 73 and shot up to 207 Saturday.

Lou Clinton started the Yankees' winning rally with a one-out single. Clete Boyer doubled him to third, and Jack Aker walked pinch hitter Roger Maris intentionally, loading the bases.

Ojala Defeated In Public Links

MILWAUKEE (AP) — In a match that warmed the hearts of many a duffer, Monty Kaser of Wichita, Kan., defeated Dave Ojala of Two Harbors, Minn., 6 and 5 in a scheduled 36-hole duel and won the National Public Links Golf Championship Saturday.

Kaser, 24, a payroll timekeeper at an aircraft factory, was nine over par for the Brown Deer course before closing out on the 31st hole with a par 4 as Ojala took one of his many bogeys.

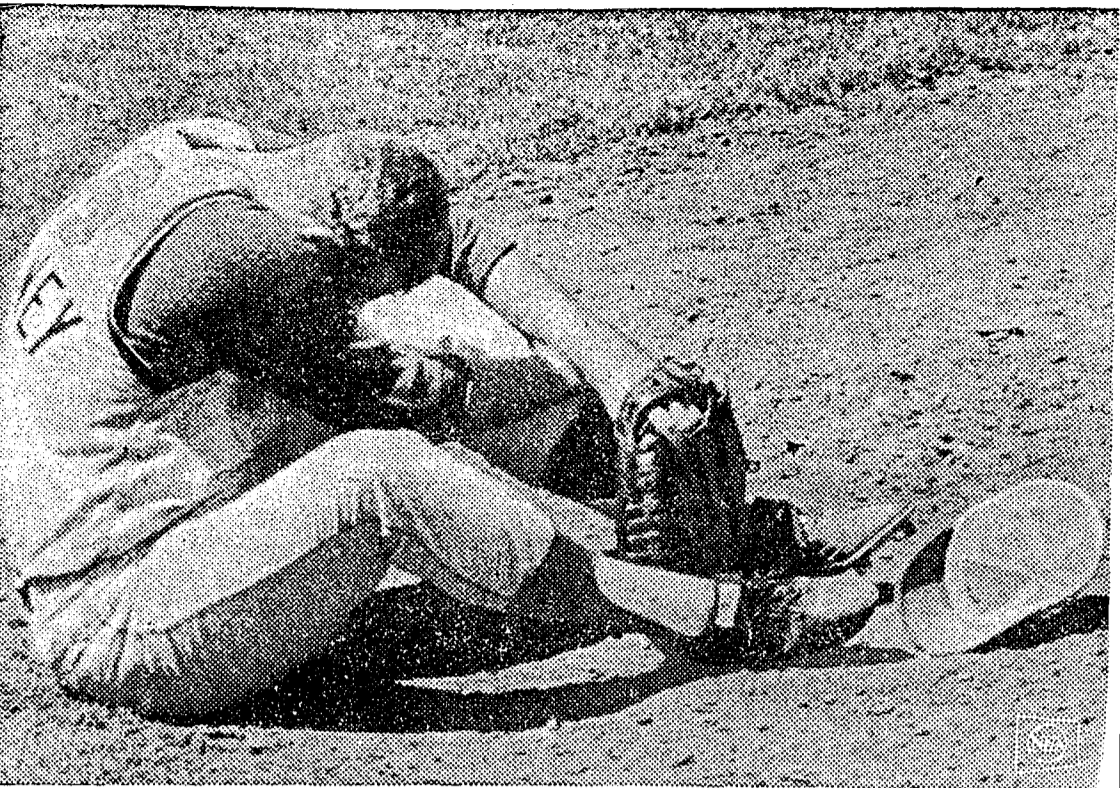

Ojala, 21, a pharmacy student at the University of Minnesota, was 17 over for the distance.

Kaser had a 36-39—75 against par 35-35—70; while Ojala finished with a 39-41—80.

PRONOUNCE BEARS FIT
RENNSELAER, Ind. (AP) — The Chicago Bears were pronounced physically fit Saturday after every member of the squad completed and passed his physical examination.

All the players also were given flu shots as a precautionary measure which should carry them through the season.

The squad went through a second straight line scrimmage and veteran J. C. Caroline was used as a linebacker. Owner Coach George Halas indicated Caroline might be used as alternate linebacker and defensive back.

TROUBLED TIMES, as if the Cincinnati Reds haven't seen enough already, appeared likely when their winningest pitcher, Jim Maloney, was hit by Willie McCovey's line drive. Maloney's knee reportedly is "responding to treatment," however.

Jackson's Error Lets Reds Win 5-3

CINCINNATI (AP) — Dick Simpson scored the tie-breaking run on an error by pitcher Al Jackson and Pete Rose knocked in another run in the seventh inning, giving Cincinnati a 5-3 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals Saturday.

The victory was the Reds' second in four games since Dave Bristol became interim manager of the club Wednesday.

Batley And Hall Boost Minnesota To Easy 6-2 Edge

MINNEAPOLIS - ST. PAUL (AP) — Early Batley and Jimmie Hall lined two-run singles in the first and second innings as the Minnesota Twins coasted to a 6-2 victory over the Washington Senators Saturday.

Dave Boswell won his seventh against five defeats and gave Minnesota a sweep of the three-game series.

Minnesota opened its barrage on singles by Zoilo Versalles and Ted Uhlaender.

The Twins scored in the second when Versalles singled, Uhlaender doubled and Don Blasingame bobbled the outfield throw. Walks to Oliva and Mincher loaded the bases before Hall delivered.

Women's Western Golf Tournament Starts Monday

CHICAGO (AP) — The 66th Women's Western Golf Association Amateur Championship begins Monday with 140 entries shooting for 32 qualifying positions.

Site of the tournament will be the Barrington Country Club, a 6,344-yard layout with a par of 38—38—76.

Following Monday's qualifying round, match play will begin Tuesday in the weeklong competition, which will end with the 36-hole championship scheduled Saturday.

Barbara Fay White, the defending champion, will be aiming for her third straight WPGA crown.

Strong challenges are expected from Jean Ashley, the present USGA champion, and Barbara McIntire, a two-time winner of the title and a member of the recently named Curtis Cup team.

Other Curtis Cup members in the field are Carol Sorenson, Peggy Conley and Nancy Roth Syms.

ALL-STARS WORKOUT
EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — The College All-Stars went through an enthusiastic double workout Saturday in preparation for their midsummer grid clash with the Green Bay Packers in Soldier Field Aug. 5.

"This is a willing, intelligent squad," said head coach John Sauer who has only three weeks to put together a team to face the National Football league champions.

One of the hardest workers in camp has been running back Walt Garrison of Oklahoma State. Garrison has been going full speed despite a minor groin pull.

APPOINTED TENNIS COACH
KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Earl Baumgardner, former University of Southern California tennis star, has been appointed tennis coach at the University of Tennessee. Vol athletic director Bob Woodruff announced Saturday.

Baumgardner, 28, now the summertime professional at Indian Hill Country Club near Evanston, Ill., will succeed Tommy Bartlett, who moved to Florida recently as basketball coach.

Baumgardner, scheduled to report to Tennessee in early September, was invited to be a member of the U.S. Davis Cup team in 1956 but declined.

Phils Nip Giants In 15 Innings, 6-5

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Tony Gonzalez, who scored the tying run in the ninth inning, singled across the winning tally in the 15th as Philadelphia edged San Francisco 6-5 Saturday.

Despite the loss, the Giants maintained their one-game National League lead over the Pittsburgh Pirates, who lost to Chicago.

Bill White led off the 15th with a single against Joe Gibbon and was sacrificed to second. Gonzalez then rapped a single to left field, driving in White.

The Phillies tied the game 5-5 in the ninth when Gonzalez led off with a single, was sacrificed to second and scored one out, later on a single by Phil Linz off

Uecker (7), White (16).

Pinch Doubles Carry White Sox To 7-2 Victory

CHICAGO (AP) — Successive pinch doubles by Smoky Burgess and Bill Skowron highlighted a five-run rally in the sixth inning Saturday and carried the Chicago White Sox to a 7-2 victory over the Cleveland Indians.

Young Russ Girl Sets World Mark In Moscow Meet

MOSCOW (AP) — United States swimmer won five of the nine events contested Saturday in the controversial five-nation meet but the lone world record established was set by a 13-year-old Moscow girl in the 200-meter breaststroke.

Although the meet was to have been a Little Olympics, with the best swimmers from five countries competing, the 40 Russians and the 14 U.S. athletes made up virtually the entire field.

Only Russians and Americans won titles, with Soviet athletes taking the other four Saturday. Eight more events will be contested Sunday.

Don Schollander of Lake Oswego, Ore., who won four gold medals in the 1964 Olympics, opened the meet by taking the 100-meter freestyle in 53.2 seconds, two-tenths of a second faster than at Tokyo.

Other U.S. winners were Charles Hickcox of Bloomington, Ind., in the 100-meter backstroke; Martha Randall of Philadelphia in the 100-meter freestyle; Susan Pitt of New Brunswick, N.J., in the 100-meter butterfly; and Judy Humbarger of Miami, Fla., in the 400-meter freestyle.

Russian men won three events while Irina Posdynakova was the lone Russian girl winner. She lowered the time for the breaststroke to 2:43 while beating Galina Prozhenchikova, the 18-year-old winner of the gold medal at Tokyo and the holder of the old record at 2:45.4.

The next morning Mrs. John McGraw came up to DiMaggio and said:

"Joe, I'm Mrs. McGraw. I've never met you but I've read about all the fine things you've done and I just wanted to shake your hand."

"It was one of the nicest things that ever happened to me," said DiMaggio. Everyone at Cooperstown made Joe feel right at home and his acceptance speech was greeted with constant applause.

Casey Stengel and Ted Williams, if Paul Kerr takes them through the Hall on the eve of the ceremonies when the building is closed to the public, will get a thorough look at all the baseball memorabilia. Such a leisurely tour will give them all the ammunition they need for a speech.

"Babe Ruth," Casey might say when he sees the home run champion's plaque. "I played against him in the 1923 World Series. I hit a home run to win the first game. Ruth hit two for the Yankees, then I hit a home run in the third game and won it 1-0. But Ruth got all the vaudeville bookings that winter. He hit a home run in the last game and the Yankees won the World Series."

"There was Grover Cleveland Alexander's plaque. This man won 373 games and I had to hit against him. In 1916 I hit only two but I can't complain. That was the year Alexander won 33

Stengel A Tough Fellow To Follow

By FRANK ECK

AP Newsfeatures Sports Editor Casey Stengel and Ted Williams will soon make what figures to be their last baseball headlines. They will be inducted into the Hall of Fame at Cooperstown, N. Y., on July 25.

Will Casey or Ted have difficulty making a speech? Not if Paul S. Kerr can help it.

When a man is about to enter the most famous building in the picturesque village on Lake Osego he is asked to appear in town a few days before the actual ceremonies.

This is done so that Paul Kerr, president of the Hall of Fame, may show them around and make them feel at home. Since 1943 Kerr has been an officer or director of the shrine conceived by the late Stephen C. Clark and dedicated in 1939.

Kerr is vice president of the Clark Estates and many of his off hours are dedicated to baseball and the shrine.

Both Casey and Williams have been there before. In fact, Ted played there in 1955 when one of his foot line drives almost broke the arm of a fireman who tried to catch the ball. It was the day Joe DiMaggio was inducted.

DiMaggio never was one to make a speech so on the eve of induction Paul Kerr drove him around town, a sort of VIP treatment. As we passed the town's one motion picture house the marquee lights read:

"Marilyn Monroe in The Seven Year Itch."

Once she had been Mrs. DiMaggio, and this writer's wife said:

"Look Joe, they're capitalizing on you."

"Yes," replied DiMaggio. "A woman probably runs the theatre."

"A woman does manage the theatre," said Paul Kerr, and DiMaggio took it good naturedly.

The next morning Mrs. John McGraw came up to DiMaggio and said:

"Joe, I'm Mrs. McGraw. I've never met you but I've read about all the fine things you've done and I just wanted to shake your hand."

"It was one of the nicest things that ever happened to me," said DiMaggio. Everyone at Cooperstown made Joe feel right at home and his acceptance speech was greeted with constant applause.

The professional football merger, Bob Devaney insists, will have a cleansing — almost purifying — effect on this year's senior collegiate crop.

"The money the pros were offering," the Nebraska coach said, "gave some of the kids an unrealistic view of life. . . . It gave them false values. . . . Recruiting, of course, never did that."

Shortly after pitching his no-hitter against the Washington Senators, Sonny Siebert of the Cleveland Indians was talking about working in the shadow of Sam McDowell.

"I'm not begrudging Sam anything," Sonny said.

"He's a great pitcher. But a lot of times a ball-player who gets a lot of publicity finds more doors open . . ."

The American League All-Star team was an example. . . . McDowell was 6-2 at the All-Star break, with four of his wins coming in the first three weeks of the season. . . . That was before Sam developed arm trouble. . . . Siebert was 9-4 at the break. . . . The original announcement from the commissioner's office had McDowell on the All-Star team. . . . Then the day before the game, McDowell, somewhat mysteriously, asked to be excused . . .

Great Ron Hunt Mystery Solved

NEW YORK — (NEA) — "The Great Ron Hunt Robbery" has been solved.

It wasn't even a robbery. Just a case of a missing label.

But for more than a week, the New York Mets' second baseman — usually the subject of profound conversations in the barrooms of Canarsie, Red Hook and Flushing — found himself in more exclusive company.

They were talking about him at the Metropolitan . . . at the Whitney . . . at the Guggenheim . . . and in all the posh galleries up and down Madison Avenue.

The original Hunt — the only Hunt — was missing from its easel at the Manhattan Savings Bank.

The portrait — worth $8,000 — was part of an exhibit of paintings by Nicholas Volpe, who had been commissioned to do 11 other Mets.

On the appointed day, the portraits were delivered to the Midtown bank, but there were only 11 crates.

Ron Hunt was missing.

The police were called, the Railway Express Agency sent its own investigators, but still there was no trace of the painting.

As the search continued, a clerk at the main REA store-room noticed a huge crate without a label. Its dimensions seemed to fit the description of the missing painting.

When workmen opened the crate, they found a smiling Ron Hunt.

It could only happen to a Met.

Nicklaus Looms As Big Favorite In PGA Tourney

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Power-hitting Jack Nicklaus looms as an overwhelming favorite to capture the Professional Golfers Association championship at the Firestone Country Club starting Thursday. That would give him three-fourths of a 1966 grand slam.

The blond belter from Columbus, Ohio, reached another pinnacle in his brief but illustrious golfing career by annexing the British Open July 8.

The Golden Bear already owns the Masters championship, but won't have a shot at the coveted slam. Billy Casper made certain of that by taking the National Open title three weeks ago in San Francisco.

Casper, the PGA's leading money-winner, is among the 170-man PGA field along with Arnold Palmer and Gary Player.

Mr. Right Cops Dwyer Handicap

NEW YORK (AP) — Mr. Right, who never had run farther than 11-16 miles, and apprentice jockey Ernest Cardone, who never had won a stakes race, combined talents for a narrow victory in the $82,350 Dwyer Handicap for 3-year-olds at Aqueduct Saturday.

Mr. Right took the 1 1/4-mile race by a nose over Exhibitionist.

It was another 1 1/2 lengths back to Buffle, the Suburban Handicap winner, and another five lengths more to fourth-place Amberoid, the Belmont Stakes winner and top-weight under 126 pounds.

WENDELL SCOTT, the only Negro driver in Grand National stock car racing, is his own mechanic and occasionally his own pit crew. At 44, his goal is to win one big race before he retires.

Wendell Scott Now Eyes One Big Win

By DAVE BURGIN

Newspaper Enterprise Assn. DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. — (NEA) — The biographical blurb about him in the Daytona International Speedway press booklet is something Wendell Scott will show his grandchildren.

It begins, "Wendell Scott is the only Negro in Grand National racing and one of the most popular drivers on the circuit."

In the Speedway garage, a man whose grimy shirt advertised a muffler shop in Atlanta talked about Scott's popularity and presence:

"He knows how to get along with people and that's why we let him drive."

Scott knows comments like these wouldn't bring cheers in CORE headquarters. But to him, they sound "fine, just fine." So does the patter of applause he hears when he turns into the pits after a race.

"Long time coming," he said. "It makes me feel good."

At 44, Scott is one of the oldest drivers in stock car racing. He has been in the Grand National Tour since 1961, finishing higher in the point standings each year. Currently he stands eighth.

To get this far, he fought off hardships and ignored indignities in a sport that virtually belongs to southern whites.

Wendell Scott has not cracked any racial barriers in the sense he has opened the way for other Negroes. He merely has won a measure of personal acceptance.

It has occurred to him that he could concentrate on being a Jackie Robinson of racing, but he says the thought stops right there.

"The only way I can help is to be a man and be a good driver. Anyway, things are gettin' better. I still run into a smart aleck now and then, but it's nothin' like it used to be."

In those years there were threats and slurs from fans, sneers and cursing from drivers, late-night phone calls to his Danville, Va., home which frightened his wife and six children.

"I spent more time duckin' wrecks than I did racing," he said. "I've been run off more tracks than I can remember. Worst I ever got was a busted chin. Damage to my cars was what hurt because I couldn't afford to fix 'em."

He's traveled to the Carolinas or Georgia for a race to be told to go back home, unless an extra car was needed to fatten the field.

He got into a modified stock race in Maryland once and won it, competing for $250 first prize. The promoter gave him $36 and told him to hit the road.

Wendell Scott figures those days are behind him now. "No sense diggin' up the past. Don't forget people down here built stock car racing and this is what I love. I'm not much good to anybody without it."

Just once, before he quits, Scott would like to win a big race, like the Daytona 500 or the Rebel 400. He won one Grand National race at Jacksonville in 1963.

"He is a good, consistent driver," the press blurb reads, "and undoubtedly would do better with first-class equipment." His pale blue 1964 Ford runs 10 to 20 miles an hour slower than the leaders.

"I just stand on it, try to stay out of everybody's way and hope it don't blow," he said. "I've been tryin' to get factory help for five years. It takes more than guts and luck in this business."

Ford has given Scott two used engines, after they had been raced by one of NASCAR's top drivers, Curtis Turner. One engine held together for a half year of racing.

To keep his expenses down, Scott is his own mechanic. He even has his own pit crew, climbing out of his car, gassing it up or changing a tire and taking off again.

It begins, "Wendell Scott is the only Negro in Grand National racing and one of the most popular drivers on the circuit."

In the Speedway garage, a man whose grimy shirt advertised a muffler shop in Atlanta talked about Scott's popularity and presence:

"He knows how to get along with people and that's why we let him drive."

Scott knows comments like these wouldn't bring cheers in CORE headquarters. But to him, they sound "fine, just fine." So does the patter of applause he hears when he turns into the pits after a race.

"Long time coming," he said. "It makes me feel good."

At 44, Scott is one of the oldest drivers in stock car racing. He has been in the Grand National Tour since 1961, finishing higher in the point standings each year. Currently he stands eighth.

To get this far, he fought off hardships and ignored indignities in a sport that virtually belongs to southern whites.

Wendell Scott has not cracked any racial barriers in the sense he has opened the way for other Negroes. He merely has won a measure of personal acceptance.

It has occurred to him that he could concentrate on being a Jackie Robinson of racing, but he says the thought stops right there.

"The only way I can help is to be a man and be a good driver. Anyway, things are gettin' better. I still run into a smart aleck now and then, but it's nothin' like it used to be."

In those years there were threats and slurs from fans, sneers and cursing from drivers, late-night phone calls to his Danville, Va., home which frightened his wife and six children.

"I spent more time duckin' wrecks than I did racing," he said. "I've been run off more tracks than I can remember. Worst I ever got was a busted chin. Damage to my cars was what hurt because I couldn't afford to fix 'em."

He's traveled to the Carolinas or Georgia for a race to be told to go back home, unless an extra car was needed to fatten the field.

He got into a modified stock race in Maryland once and won it, competing for $250 first prize. The promoter gave him $36 and told him to hit the road.

Wendell Scott figures those days are behind him now. "No sense diggin' up the past. Don't forget people down here built stock car racing and this is what I love. I'm not much good to anybody without it."

Just once, before he quits, Scott would like to win a big race, like the Daytona 500 or the Rebel 400. He won one Grand National race at Jacksonville in 1963.

"He is a good, consistent driver," the press blurb reads, "and undoubtedly would do better with first-class equipment." His pale blue 1964 Ford runs 10 to 20 miles an hour slower than the leaders.

"I just stand on it, try to stay out of everybody's way and hope it don't blow," he said. "I've been tryin' to get factory help for five years. It takes more than guts and luck in this business."

Ford has given Scott two used engines, after they had been raced by one of NASCAR's top drivers, Curtis Turner. One engine held together for a half year of racing.

To keep his expenses down, Scott is his own mechanic. He even has his own pit crew, climbing out of his car, gassing it up or changing a tire and taking off again.

Wendell Scott is the only Negro driver in Grand National stock car racing, is his own mechanic and occasionally his own pit crew. At 44, his goal is to win one big race before he retires.

Larrieu, Walker Smash Records In All-American

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Truck driver Ron Larrieu ran the fastest 10,000 meter race ever on American soil and Walker smashed his American triple jump record Saturday in the All-American Track and Field Meet.

The competition replaced the scheduled United States-Poland dual meet from which the Poles withdrew following the lead of the Russians.

Larrieu, 29, from Santa Monica, Calif., went the gruelling 10,000 meters, equivalent of six miles and 376.1 yards, in 23 minutes, 54.1 seconds. The best previous on an American track was 24:16 by Gerry Lindgren of Spokane, Wash.

The American record of 23:17.6 belongs to Billy Mills who ran at Augsburg, Germany, last year.

Larrieu was duded all the way by Van Nelson, a St. Cloud (Minn.) State College sophomore. Nelson went ahead with a mile to go but Larrieu's finishing sprint won out as the youngest finished in 23:55.5, second fastest on an American track.

Walker leaped 54-7 1/2 in the event where Poland's Jozef Schmidt holds the world record at 55-10 1/2 set six years ago. Poland had not followed the lead of Russia, stating opposition of the U.S. war effort in Viet Nam, Walker and Schmidt would have met in Berkeley.

In addition to those of Larrieu and Walker, marks were set by Ed Red of Pasadena, Calif., with a 270-4 javelin throw; Al Oerter, of New York, with 205-6 1/2 in the discus; Paul Wilson of Downey, Calif., and Bob Seagren of Glendale, Calif., each with 16-6 in the pole vault; Pat Traynor, 49er track club of Long Beach, Calif., 8:47.2 in the 3,000 meter steeplechase, and the U.S. "A" 400 meter relay team, 39.1.

The 400 meter foursome of George Anderson, Harold Busby, Tom Jones and Jim Hines was only one-tenth second off the world record.

Bert Charlotte Cooke, the 18-year-old speedster from Los Angeles, made a runaway of the women's 400-meter event in 53.8, four-tenths of a second off her pending American record.

Charlie Greene of Nebraska won the men's 100-meter dash in 10.3, with George Anderson of Southern University second at 10.4.

Walker's leap bettered his pending mark of 54-1.

Two REFORMATORY INMATES MISSING

PENDELTON, Ind. (AP) — Two Indiana Reformatory inmates vanished Saturday during a fishing trip planned as part of the reformatory's recreational program.

Reformatory officials identified the escapees as Gregory P. Narug, 24, Calumet City, Ill., and Gordon E. Napier, 23, of Indianapolis, Ind.

Narug was serving a 1-10 year term from Lake County Indiana for robbery and assault.

Napier was sentenced in Marion County to 1-5 years for statutory rape.

DEAD HEAT IN ROCKINGHAM

SALEM, N.H. (AP) — Jolly Jet and Sense of Rhythm finished in a dead heat for first Saturday in the $89,250 Rockingham Special on which New Hampshire's first lottery of the year was based.

Rockingham Park stewards studied films for several minutes before deciding that the 3-year-old colts could not be separated at the finish of the 1 1/2 mile test.

The even-money favorite, Stupendous, never was in contention and finished fifth.

Winds around Akron are such that Casper will be safest from fumes directly south of the city. Luckily, Firestone Country Club is located eight miles south of town.

A man named Dave Plum has donated his house in the Portage Lakes suburb. It is air-conditioned and has an electric range on which Casper's wife, Shirley, can prepare a savory whale steak.

"Everything sounds fine and I appreciate their efforts," Casper said. "Now, I'll check with my allergist in Chicago just before the tournament and if he says I'm O.K., I'll be there."

The golf end of things on the 7,165-yard, par 70 layout, designed by Robert Trent Jones, is something Casper will have to take care of himself. He will have to beat Palmer on one of his favorite courses and Nicklaus on a layout inviting to the man who has a consistent long game.

In all the rounds of tournament golf played on the six-year-old Firestone, Palmer has the best record, an average-per-round score of 70.3. His lowest finish was a tie for seventh in the PGA in 1960. He won the Classic at Firestone in 1962, finished second twice, third once and fourth once.

Firestone has two killer holes — the 625-yard 16th which is dubbed "The Monster" because of its length, a ditch lateral to the fairway and a pond guarding the green; and the 465-yard fourth, on which only 50 birdsies have been scored in five years of the Classic or 1,333 rounds.

But the man to be pitied is not Casper, with his allergies, and the other pros who will test one of America's most frustrating courses.

It is Dave Plum, who is committed to giving up his home for a week and moving to another part of town so Casper can enjoy his stay in Akron. Plum, it so happens, has allergies similar to Casper's.

Perhaps Casper will leave Plum an extra whale steak.

DETROIT (AP) — Brooks Robinson's bases-loaded single highlighted a four-run Baltimore first inning and the Orioles routed Denny McLain with two more runs in the second on their way to an 8-2 victory over the Detroit Tigers Saturday.

Brooks Robinson

The first five Orioles to face McLain, making his first start since the All-Star Game, reached base. Singles by Luis Aparicio and Russ Snyder and a walk to Frank Robinson preceded Brooks Robinson's two-run single.

Boog Powell singled, driving in Frank Robinson, and a sacrifice fly by Dave Johnson brought home Brooks.

Findley Seeks To Block Deal Over Red Hogs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Paul Findley, R-Ill., urged President Johnson Saturday to block dealers under which the Export-Import Bank would finance Communist production of hogs for U.S. markets.

Findley said in a letter to the President, "I hope you will see fit to instruct the Export-Import Bank to reject any application which would, in effect, cause U.S. hog raisers to finance competition for themselves from Communist countries."

The congressman said a young farmer, about to be drafted to fight in Viet Nam, told him of the financial sacrifice he was forced to make in liquidating his hog operation.

"If as a taxpayer, he can be required to help finance Communist production of hogs for the U.S. market he can no longer serve himself, this indeed is a world gone mad," Findley said.

A New York Times July 11 dispatch from Belgrade, Yugoslavia, said that Milton A. Gordon, a New York investor, announced he had signed an agreement with a Rumanian firm for processing Rumanian pork products. The dispatch said he reported he would receive 72 percent of his financing through the Export-Import Bank. Gordon's firm was said to be Intercontinental Markets, Inc.

The Good Old Things

Maybe it's because they're "so" in their ways or simply are hostile to progress, but a lot of people prefer old times to new. Thousands of American men, for instance, still figure they can get a decent shave only with a straight-edge razor. More than half a million wringer washing machines were sold in the United States last year, and no decline in sales of this item is expected.

Hand water pumps, manually operated ice cream freezers and non-motorized lawn mowers still have a market. The old-fashioned pocket watch is in increased demand, thanks in part to return of the vest. Long Johns, corsets, bib overalls and high-topped shoes haven't gone into limbo, either.

This cannot be attributed solely to blind devotion to the past. Items that were popular in grandpa's day have talking points still. For example, maintenance is nil on a straight-edge razor, and there are no blades to buy or motors to burn out.

A hand lawn mower is quieter than its sputtering motorized counterpart, and it operates on no fuel at all. Or take the hand-turned ice cream freezer: has there ever been anything more delicious than the stuff the kids licked off the dasher? Here was an ambrosial reward for swinging the flat side of an axe against a gunny sack to crush ice, and for laborious turning of the handle.

The yen for items popular in days of yore does have its disturbing aspects. Granny dresses and steel-rimmed spectacles go over big with teenagers. We're all for the good things of the good old days, but there are limits. If the trend were to get out of hand, the stiff collar might become fashionable again, and who'd want that?

The Channel Tunnel

Britain and France have been talking of a railway tunnel beneath the English channel for almost a century. That makes approval of the project, culminating nine years of studies and planning, an action of considerable historic importance.

This seems all the more true when one considers the role the Channel has played, over many centuries, as a bulwark of England's security. Had this treacherous body of water not protected the British Isles from the Continent, history might have taken a different turn on a number of occasions.

That is all past now. In an age of jet planes and guided missiles, the Channel is no longer much of a barrier to invasion; Britain's security depends on other things.

The Channel tunnel project has been under intensive consideration since 1957, when a study was formed with the backing of various British and American interests. The results of this group's studies and planning were turned over to the British and French governments two years ago.

Even if things go forward briskly now, the tunnel will not become a reality for several years—six or more, it is estimated. But when construction is at last completed travelers will be able to make the London-Paris train journey in about five hours. That will be something for would-be conquerors of the past, in whatever Valhallas they now occupy, to contemplate with envy.

Dear Ann:

"Burns" Over Asked For Gift

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I've been burning about this for weeks and finally decided to write and get it off my chest.

My husband and I had a small dinner party a few days before Mother's Day. We are all couples in our middle 30's. Every man in the crowd makes at least $35,000 a year.

The women started to talk about Mother's Day and whether or not it made any difference if they were remembered by their husbands as well as their children. Two of the women said they would feel very hurt if their husbands forgot them on Mother's Day. One woman said she resented the whole bit—that Mother's Day was a commercial holiday manufactured by merchants and she couldn't care less.

I said it's the thought that counts and any little gift—even a single rose—would be appreciated. Well, on Mother's Day, guess what my husband gave me? A single rose. I don't know if this is his idea of a joke but I was very disappointed. He bought his own mother a pure silk robe that must have cost $100. What do you think of this? —NO LAUGHING MATTER

Dear No Laughing: Obviously, you were playing to the gallery and you didn't mean what you said.

A single rose means "I love you" but it's apparent that you'd rather have the cash.

Dear Ann Landers: May I say "amen" to your admonition to parents NOT to deprive their children of the pleasure of personal accomplishments.

So many mothers and fathers insist on doing things OVER for their children or they demand a degree of perfection that is impossible to attain. As a music teacher I have had a great deal of experience with such parents. The mother who feels she must sit beside her children when they practice the piano to make certain all mistakes are recognized and corrected destroys something very precious.

Small wonder so many kids hate to practice.

Children should be left alone to enjoy their efforts and encouraged, not harped at and criticized. The youngster who is driven and pushed may be an achiever, but the one who gets personal approval is far happier. —BIRD'S EYE VIEW

Dear Bird: Thank you for your letter. It provided me with an opportunity to get this idea before my readers once again and I appreciate it.

Dear Ann Landers: We have been married four years. This is my first marriage and my husband was a widower. His wife died six years before we were married. She is buried about 50 miles from here.

In August we are taking our first real vacation since our honeymoon. My husband wants to drive 500 miles to visit his first wife's grave. I am hurt to think that he'd rather spend his vacation with something out of the past than with me. Am I wrong to refuse to go?

Dear E. C. K.: When you say, "Spend his vacation visiting his wife's grave" you are distorting the facts. Surely your husband did not suggest a vacation at the grave.

Your husband probably wants to return to the city where he and his first wife once lived. He would, of course, visit his wife's grave which is perfectly all right. By all means make the trip with him, and when he goes to the cemetery, do something else for a few hours.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Office Zoo Reacts To Heat

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — An unspoken rule in every modern business office is — "Don't make waves."

The idea behind this is that all are better off if each individual respects the other's survival pattern. In other words: if you don't make waves that threaten to drown me, I won't raise a storm against you.

An exception to this live-and-let-live policy is the heat wave. Heat waves, of course, are phenomena of nature and are not manmade.

Hence no one can be blamed for them with the possible exception of the company's management, which is darkly suspected of having a guilty hand in any catastrophe, no matter how innocent it may seem on the surface.

The white collar peasants fight summer heat waves in various ways, and the following characters may be noted in your own office zoo:

The engineer — He keeps the air-conditioning equipment purring like a kitten in December, and invariably goes on his vacation just before it clanks to a halt in July. If it is still broken down when he returns in mid-August, he hides out in the basement behind the boiler and plays gin rummy with the building superintendent until October. The air-conditioning gear then usually resumes working normally of its own accord.

The office girl watcher — "Who minds a little hot weather?" yelps this happy wolf in paradise. "Have you looked at the gals in the stenographic pool? Not a girdle in the whole gaggle!"

The psychiatrist — "It's all in your head," he proclaims. On the theory that if you pretend the heat isn't there it doesn't exist, he shows up in a topcoat and a wool muffler. On the third day, delirious, he is taken to the hospital, complaining of the chill.

The amateur weather expert — "It isn't so bad if you understand what causes it," he says, drawing charts on the wall with a big black pencil. "We're caught in a doldrum, right now. But when this hot air mass rises, it will be swept away by this cold air mass building up in the Arctic. As I see it, we might even have snow by the end of the week."

LBJ's Strong Right Arm: His Stable of Workhorses

By BRUCE BLOSSAT

Washington Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
WASHINGTON (NEA) —

Though it is perhaps a little early to judge the "new mix" on President Johnson's White House staff, first indications are that it is dominated more than ever before by a high spirit of professionalism.

Long gone are John F. Kennedy's men, except for Postmaster General Lawrence O'Brien, who continues to stand close to the President's side on many matters. Gone, too, are many of the original Johnson crew — men who walked in with him the day Kennedy was killed.

His quick rise to prominence was possibly the turning point in the staff's move toward anonymous professionalism. From the outset, he exhibited a huge talent for getting on top of a problem immediately, marshaling the options for the President's consideration, and keeping his own balance.

When Johnson vested abundant confidence in Califano as a professional performer of crucial assignments, it was an unmistakable departure from his long reliance on the comfort of familiar Texans and trusted Kennedy holdovers like O'Brien — though that reliance continues.

Beyond Moyers and Califano, associates of the President find it hard to rank staff men. It is agreed newcomers Kintner and Rostow figure large in the scheme of things, but more time will be needed to measure them.

Special counsel Harry McPherson, replacement for Lee White, now chairman of the Federal Power Commission, appears to be cutting a wide path. Jake Jacobsen is reported as handling well his duties in congressional liaison.

As always, Johnson keeps his key aides busy switch-hitting. There are no hard jurisdictional lines. Titles mean little. They are given new content with each change in staff make-up.

Change has produced a staff that today is weighed mostly in the scale of professional competence. Yet that does not mean all zip and color are drained away.

Even if that were to happen, the President has his insurance policy — constant visits and colorful meaty counsel from such favored "outside insiders" as McNamara and O'Brien. The popular O'Brien is perched near Johnson's personal summit, and seems likely to stay there no matter who sits at what desks in White House staff offices.

Califano is the key man on top domestic issues, most importantly those having to do with economics — inflation, strikes, the bonds with labor and business. Fatigue may be getting some staff men, but he is still a Sunday worker. Papers in hand, he is probably the most familiar sight anywhere in the building.

Price Of China's A-Bomb Is Political Dissension

By RAY CROMLEY

Washington Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
WASHINGTON (NEA) —

Red China's rulers may have paid a greater price than they imagined for their nuclear explosions.

That is, there may be a partial tie-in between Communist China's atom bomb development and the political dissension in that country.

The production of these atomic blasts was so important to Mao Tse-tung in his psychological-propaganda war for control of Asia that he was forced to turn to and lean heavily on scientists who had been trained in the United States, Britain and other free nations of the West.

His top nuclear scientists were so trained.

In the earlier period of the regime, these Western schooled Chinese scientists, with their emphasis on facts and their skepticism concerning propaganda, had been mistrusted.

Being mistrusted, they had been allowed to work but had been kept, so far as possible, from positions of influence and authority.

But Mao had to have the bomb. He was not getting help from the Russians. His own supply of home-grown and educated scientists did not have the maturity for imaginative nuclear development.

So the Red Chinese turned more to Western science. They began teaching their young scientists English instead of Russian. They began to study American scientific literature.

Scientists from northern European countries were invited to lecture. Students began going to selected Western countries.

As the regime sought to build the bomb and rockets and to train a new generation of scientists, it finally had to rely upon the outstanding Western-trained scientists—men from Massachusetts Institute of Technology, California Institute of Technology, Harvard, Cambridge, the University of California, Liverpool University, Edinburgh, Tokyo Imperial University, Berlin, Toronto University.

Their teaching and research methods were Western-oriented. Chinese officials complained they had a pro-West and pro-American mentality which intensive political indoctrination was unable to destroy.

With Western-trained scientists doing the instructing it was impossible to prevent the young Chinese science students from getting Western thoughts.

The Western influence was already so strong by 1958 that Peking launched a national campaign in the colleges and universities against the bourgeois viewpoint.

The atomic work was done under the Western influence.

The successful nuclear explosions were exploited to the full by the Peking government. It was impossible to completely discredit the men who made them possible.

The new knowledge of the power of science and of nuclear weapons has created among some knowledgeable Chinese a deeper understanding of the power of Western industry, arms and production methods.

This is creating dissatisfaction with Mao's insistence that party doctrine is fact in the fields of science, industry, technology, government and military matters.

FINDING THE WAY

Need: Truer Brotherhood

By RALPH W. LOEW, D.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

A seemingly endless stream of projects was loosed into the world by Pope John's decision to call an ecumenical congress. Ecumenical dialogues, theological exchanges, popular meetings and numerous books have been set free as though only waiting for one imaginative man to raise the barriers in order for them to run into the places of action. With such a numerous company there is a diversity of quality. But it's not mediocrity and it's exciting.

Among the notable projects is a series of 50 volumes published by the Paulist Press under the title of "Concilium." Each volume is a collection of essays by brilliant Catholic theologians, studying aspects of Vatican Council II. Among the most interesting of these volumes, thus far published, is one which is disarmingly entitled "Do We Know the Others?"

Edited by the famous theologian Hans Kung of Tübingen, Germany it suggests that even in this time we do not know each other. Says this Roman Catholic of his fellow-Protestants:

"They are our brethren, even though they differ from us in many ways. Diversity is often more fruitful than unity in mediocrity. We should be particularly concerned about this because, for all their weaknesses and the one-sidedness from which they, too, obviously suffer, there are many things they do better as Christians than we. We notice this as soon as we begin to know them. It then begins to dawn upon us that so often our catholicity is unfortunately not a reality but only a possibility, a claim, a program which still demands fulfillment."

With this stated, the various authors set forth their understanding of Luther, Calvin and many of the theological movements in the Protestant includes essays from several Protestant theologians concerning the recent Papal Encyclical or the Lord's Supper.

All of this is done in order that the ideal of studying the Gospel together might be achieved instead of searching out each other's deficiencies. In the end, the abstractions of ecumenism—the lofty statements of the learned theologians—have to be understood and discussed by the people in the local neighborhood. They have to learn to know each other.

One of the dangers that comes with such understanding is that there is a mood of "so what?" Men are tempted to treat history and experience as though it has no meaning. It is in really understanding each other in depth, not in sentimentalizing one another, that we grow in faith.

This is why it is of such importance that theology be discussed in newspapers as well as in pulpits, over the coffee cups instead of just in the formal meetings, and in the living room dialogs as well as in the theologian's study. There is a hunger to know, to learn and to understand and it ought not to be distorted by a diet of tidbits or hors d'oeuvres. We do need to know each other in order that we can study and pray and tackle life's urgent demands together. Once that was just an ideal; now it is an exciting demand!

True Basis for Love

By VIKTOR E. FRANKL
Excerpted from "The Doctor and The Soul"

A person's physical appearance has comparatively little to do with his being loved.

His physical traits and temperamental ones acquire their erotic significance from love itself; it is love which makes these characteristics lovable.

Psychologically, of course, it is understandable that an unattractive person will painfully and artificially seek what seems to come too easily to the attractive. The ugly person will overestimate the love life. In fact, love is only one of the possible ways to fill life with meaning and is not even the best way. Our existences would have come to a sad pass if their meaning depended solely upon whether or not we experienced happiness in love.

Life is infinitely rich in chances to realize values. The individual who neither loves nor is loved can still shape his life in a highly meaningful manner. The only question is whether the failure to achieve love is really imposed by destiny and is not a neurotic failure, one for which the person has himself to blame.

Neurotic straining after happiness in love leads to unhappiness precisely because of the strain involved. The person who overvalues eroticism tries to force open that "door to happiness," which Kierkegaard says "opens outward" and does not yield to violence.

On the other hand the person who devalues the love life in an effort to make himself feel better about what he has not attained also blocks his way to erotic happiness.

Stress on appearance leads to general overestimation of the value of "beauty" in erotic life. There is something insulting about identifying a woman as "beautiful." This stress on external implies not only a devaluation of the person who is being judged but also of the person who delivers the judgment. For if I talk only about a woman's beauty, that suggests not only that I have nothing favorable to say about her personality but also that I am not interested in her personality because I do not value the qualities of personality.

All flirtation, all the common gallantries of the past and present disregard the partner's inner personality with unconscious intent. The uniqueness of the other person is deliberately left out of such encounters.

People who go in for such superficial eroticism m flounder from the obligations of real love, from any sense of having true ties with the partner because such ties involve responsibility. Their love is directed toward impersonal "looks."

Handle Tomatoes Carefully

By GAYNOR MADDOX
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Q—Please tell me how to select tomatoes in the market. I don't seem to have much luck.

A—Handle tomatoes carefully because they bruise easily. Fully ripe tomatoes, being extremely delicate, are often picked before reaching maturity and then allowed to ripen en route to market. If they aren't fully ripe when you buy them, place them in a dry place, away from light, never on the window sill because the sun will ripen them unevenly. Refrigerate fully ripe tomatoes to prevent over-ripening.

When selecting at the market, look for those tomatoes that are well-formed and plump, of uniform red color, free from marks and not overripe or soft. Avoid tomatoes that are puffy, a sign of poor flavor. Scattered, rough tomatoes, or those with slight deformities, or with well-healed growth cracks, may be objectionable only in appearance. Otherwise they may be all right. Such slight irregularities will not detract when you serve tomatoes sliced, cut into pieces or salads, or used in soups, stews and casseroles.

Q—My husband insists I can "age" steak in my refrigerator. My butcher says that is not so. Who is right?

A—Your butcher is right. Aging requires controlled conditions of humidity, temperature and air movement. It is not possible to duplicate these conditions in the home.

Illinois Farm OUTLOOK

SOYBEAN PRICES AND PROSPECTS

Soybean prices rose spectacularly in recent months. Prices seem likely to fluctuate at high levels, at least until the new crop becomes available in large volume.

Three big factors combined to raise prices of soybeans. They were (1) a growing demand for soybean meal from livestock producers and poultrymen, (2) an increasing demand for soybeans from foreign buyers, and (3) poor weather for the 1966 crop.

More poultry feed is needed. Poultry are the biggest consumers of soybean meal. Production of broilers has been running 8 to 12 percent over year-before levels for about a year.

Prices of broilers have been very good, so producers have bought feed freely.

Egg production has been slightly less than last year, but higher prices for eggs have given farmers more cash to spend for feed.

Turkey producers are increasing production by at least 10 percent, and this adds correspondingly to the demand for soybean meal.

More hogs and cattle are being fed. The birth rate in farrowing pens has been going up since last November. The winter-spring pig crop was 10 percent larger than that of a year before. Because of exceptionally good hog prices, producers have been willing to feed their hogs well.

The number of cattle being fattened for market has averaged 9 percent larger than in 1964-65. On April 1 there were 13 percent more cattle on feed than a year earlier.

Milk production has been slightly less than last year, but prices are the best in several years. Dairymen are feeding their cows well in order to get high production per cow.

Total domestic use of soybean meal for feed during this marketing year may reach 10 million tons, 8 percent more than last year. Exports of meal may exceed 2.6 million tons, up 30 percent from 1964-65. Recent prices for meal at Decatur were around $105 a ton, up nearly 40 percent. The rise added about 60 cents to the value of a bushel of soybeans.

The soybean oil market depends largely on surplus disposal-foreign aid programs. Recent prices were around 11.6 cents a pound, up 13 percent from a year earlier. The higher price for soybean oil adds only about 14 cents a bushel to the value of soybeans.

Foreign exports increase. Foreign buyers purchased 208 million bushels of our soybeans from September 1 to June 1. This amount was 25 percent more than a year before.

Beans are in short supply. It now appears that supplies of soybeans will shrink to near the vanishing point by September 1. Mills, however, will stretch out their supplies to keep soybean meal flowing to producers of livestock and poultry.

New crop prospects are mixed. With no reserve of old beans on hand, new crop prospects have a great influence on prices. The U. S. D. A. won't forecast the soybean crop until early August, but official reports on crop conditions are made every week.

In late June the soybean crop was late and soils were dry in many parts of Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, and Arkansas. Crop prospects were at least average in Iowa, Minnesota, and Missouri.

FOUR TO ATTEND LEADERSHIP CAMP

Four Morgan County youths — two boys and two girls — who have established enviable records in 4-H work, will be at Illinois State Memorial park, Monticello this week, for five days of education, recreation and inspiration.

All are junior leaders in their respective clubs. They are Tom Burrus of the Victory club; Don Headen of the Lynnville Hustlers; Lavona Schone of the Chapin Topnotchers and Carol Leeper of Berea Lassies.

They will return Saturday.

Farm Bureau Sights Policy Development

Farm Bureau members throughout Illinois are beginning their annual grassroots approach to the development of policies which will serve as guidelines for their organization during the year ahead.

Each year members of Farm Bureau families are encouraged to express their views on numerous matters that affect agriculture and rural living. These discussions on a neighborhood, township, and county basis, are the first steps in the development of policy positions for Farm Bureau, the organization consisting of more than 194,000 member families throughout the state.

Although fewer farmers are engaged in planting and caring for crops, agriculture is gaining in importance as the demand for food increases with the steadily increasing population. As agriculture grows and becomes more complex, the job of farm organization policy development becomes more vital to farmers.

Farm Bureau policies set guidelines for sound organization programs in such fields as legislation, marketing, and education.

At local policy development meetings, Farm Bureau members voice opinions on various problems of interest to farm families and list recommendations on how Farm Bureau might help solve these problems. Recommendations concern local, state, and national matters.

Recommendations concerning state and national affairs are sent to the tentative resolutions committee of the Illinois Agricultural Association (state-wide Farm Bureau). The farmers on the committee sort through the various discussion topics and develop background information on the subjects of most state-wide interest. This background information is printed and returned to the 99 county Farm Bureaus as a basis for further discussion.

Following local policy development meetings in August and September, county Farm Bureaus will submit policy development reports to the IAA tentative resolutions committee. The tentative resolutions committee will draft resolutions to be submitted to the more than 500 farmer-delegates for final action at the IAA annual meeting in Chicago November 14-17.

Carl N. Sheffer of Carrollton, president of the Greene County Farm Bureau, is a member of the tentative resolutions committee and Daryle E. Tegeder, Mercedia, president of the Cass County Farm Bureau, is a member of the national sub-committee.

Soybean Producers To Meet In Iowa

Recent expansion developments in the soybean crop and industry and a similar growth in the American Soybean Association and affiliated state associations make ASA's 46th annual convention at Des Moines and Ames Aug. 17-19 by all odds the most important in its history, says Geo. M. Strayer, the Association's executive vice president.

He says literally nobody was prepared for the expansion in usage of the soybean crop which has taken place this past year. This has turned an expected 90-million-bushel carryover into a near deficit and has pushed market prices to among the highest levels in soybean history.

Soybeans in recent years have become the nation's No. 3 crop in money value and the No. 1 export crop, with now over half the crop going to foreign buyers, Strayer says. Last year production was by far the largest in soybean history — over 144 million bushels compared with 700 million the previous year. The experts said there would be a sizable carryover at the end of this marketing year but usage of the crop both at home and abroad has far exceeded all expectations, says Strayer. The recent runaway market has been the result. Only twice in the past 30 years have soybeans commanded higher prices.

The growth in membership in the growers' Association has more than kept pace with the growth of the crop, according to Strayer. ASA now has eight affiliated associations which will send delegations to the convention in Des Moines. The Mississippi Soybean Association is sending a chartered busload of members and there probably will be buses from other states. Affiliated state associations are the Iowa Soybean Association, the Minnesota Soybean Association, the Land of Lincoln Soybean Association (Illinois), the Missouri Soybean Association, the Arkansas Soybean Association, the Tennessee Soybean Association, and the South Carolina Soybean Association in addition to the Mississippi Soybean Association.

The formal convention program will be held at Hotel Fort Des Moines Aug. 17 and 18, followed by a field trip to farms and the soybean test plots at Iowa State University Agronomy Farm on the 19th. The program on Wednesday, Aug. 17 will be devoted to the problems of obtaining higher soybean yields, Strayer said. Thursday, Aug. 18, will cover marketing problems.

The field trip on Friday will include stops at two outstanding Iowa farms, the Alfred Accola farm at Alleman, and the Orville Kalsen farm near Huxley.

Firms serving the industry will show exhibits at the meetings.

Vote $7 Billion For Department Of Agriculture

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate passed 77 to 2 Friday a bill to appropriate $7,064,343,300 in new money to operate the Agriculture Department in the fiscal year which started July 1.

The bill now goes back to the House for action on Senate amendments. The House had voted about $188 million less in new money; the final version probably will be a compromise between the two figures.

The bill also contains authority to make loans — $932 million in the Senate version and about $80 million less in the House one.

The Senate bill carried $40 million in cash and $230 million in loans above President Johnson's budget estimates and $682 million cash and $95 million in loans above funds voted for the last fiscal year.

Both the Senate and House rejected Johnson's proposals for big reductions in funds to support the school lunch and special milk programs.

Before passing the measure, the Senate also added $10 million to provide a total of $140 million for the food stamp program, which helps needy persons to buy food.

Turned down 52 to 28 was a move by Sen. Daniel B. Brewster, D-Md., to limit farm benefit payments and price support loans made to any one producer to a ceiling of $50,000. Similar efforts have been defeated in previous years.

BRIMFUL Western Beef Cattle Field Day Saturday

By Jim Brim

Traffic authorities agree that the chief cause of traffic accidents — particularly those after dark — is the driver who cannot stay awake.

The drone of the engine has a hypnotic effect. Easy chair autos increase the danger of going to sleep at the wheel.

Avoid taking drugs — consider these things to help keep awake.

—A sniff of camphor or smelling salts will alert most drivers for a while.

—Avoid driving alone at night if possible. Make your long trip with a talkative companion.

—Take off your shoes on long drives, particularly the one on the accelerator.

—Take a thermos of hot coffee. A stop for a few sips helps.

—Suck fruit or mint drops.

—Keep the window open. If too cold stop and walk around the car.

—Practice deep breathing and correct posture.

—Use a radio. Beware of slumber music. Whistle, practice a speech, sing.

—Avoid tranquilizing drugs and alcoholic drinks.

—Play word games with companion. Watch the road, but move your eyes from side to side to avoid the hypnotic stare.

—Safety check your car, particularly the muffler and exhaust system.

—Fasten your seat belt and THINK ALIVE.

Now you should . . .

... Keep cool . . .

... Check the corn borer situation.

... Keep the hogs cool . . .

... Get ready for the fair . . .

... Drink plenty of water, take a little extra salt . . .

... Eat garden produce . . .

... Take pictures of reunions and summer fun . . .

... Check your driver's license for renewal date . . .

The man who goes through life looking for something soft can usually find it — under his hat.

Carol Becker Enjoying Trip To Denmark

Carol Ann Becker, 19, is evidently enjoying her trip to Denmark as the first 4-H member from Morgan county to participate in the new 4-H International Foreign Youth Exchange.

This program is not involved in any foreign aid or giveaway programs. The participant pays the fare. For years Europe has arranged such programs, particularly in art and music, where students join together to pursue their particular interests. Now boys and girls interested in agriculture at relatively low costs, can do the same, it's rather expensive, but less than a weekend at Hot Springs or Las Vegas.

Carol is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Becker, south-east of Jacksonville. She went to Washington, D.C. June 19, for an orientation program arranged by the National 4-H Federation, then flew directly to Europe. She has been learning Danish agriculture, which is about on a par with Danish bread and pastries, but will leave soon for a tour of European capitals, and will be home in time to resume her studies as a sophomore in the home economics department of the University of Illinois.

In a card to Ralph Romig, assistant farm adviser, last week she wrote:

It was a long trip, but I finally made it. I love Denmark. I feel very much at home. I still can't realize that I'm in a different country. The climate is cool, the soil is sandy, red brick houses with red tiled roofs are common and everyone is most friendly.

I'm staying here at Kjaegard, an Agricultural school. At one time it was a castle. Now it houses 70 students, the Jensens, my host family, Kaye Rank from Minnesota and myself. The equipment here is very modern. Similar to the larger farmers' in Denmark.

So far I've washed floors, attended several dances, dug potatoes, eaten delicious food, visited the sea shore at Romo, racing stables, circus, livestock shows, ridden a horse, bucked chickens, seen dikes, attended 4-H camp, saw gymnastic exhibitions, and slept when possible.

Farmers Ballot On Township ASC Leaders

The annual election of the Morgan County Agricultural and Stabilization committee is being held this month.

On July 12, ballots were mailed to all known eligible voters. These ballots have a list of nominees for community committeemen in each of the eighteen townships. Other names may be written in.

Three regular committeemen and two alternates will be elected in each township. Ballots must be postmarked or returned in person not later than July 22.

Office Manager Wallace T. Hemmrough stated that the ballots will be tabulated publicly by the county committee beginning at 9 a.m., Monday, July 25, at the county ASCS office, 15 Permae Road, Jacksonville.

The public is invited to witness the vote counting.

The county convention will be held at the A.S.C.S. county office, Friday, July 29, beginning at 9 a.m. The convention is open to the public.

The delegates to the County Convention will be the three regular elected committeemen in each township. The two alternate elected committeemen will serve as alternate delegates to the county convention. The purpose of the convention is to elect a person to fill the vacancy for a specific term of office on the County Committee and two alternates to the County Committee for one-year terms only. Also, after all vacancies on the committee are filled, to elect from the three regular members, a Chairman and a Vice-Chairman.

Loans Available For Housing For Older Folks

Credit and technical assistance is available to community nonprofit groups or consumer cooperatives interested in constructing, purchasing, improving, or repairing rental housing designed to meet the special needs of senior citizens, reminds Norman Torrens, Farmers Home Administration supervisor for Brown, Cass, and Morgan counties.

Supervisor Torrens explains that this housing may consist of one-story apartment buildings, duplex units, individual detached houses or cottages suitable for independent living by persons 62 years of age or older.

"This loan program for nonprofit community groups unable to get such credit elsewhere carries three percent interest on unpaid principal. The repayment period may be as long as 50 years," the Farmers Home Administration official explains. "Housing financed under this direct loan program should be designed to serve senior citizens."

The loan funds may also be used to finance appropriate recreational and service facilities, to buy and improve the land on which the buildings are to be built and to develop the water, sewage disposal, heat and light systems needed for the housing.

Rental housing so financed must be made available only to those senior citizens who are retired farmers or families living in small county towns of not more than 5,500 population.

Supervisor Torrens emphasized that applicants applying for this rural credit must be legally capable of furnishing adequate security and have sufficient income for loan repayment. They must also have the ability to maintain and operate the housing to accomplish the purpose for which the loan is made.

Kinship

By Mary Pence Claywell

A blue jay, and a black bird, quite friendly, talked away; They weren't fussing, as you'd think, just "passing time of day."

I watched the pair, from where I stood, not trusting them, you bet, not trusting them, For I had seen them, many times, but never friendly yet:

The blue jay was the leader, and cast his heady eye Upon my nice "tomato" patch, at blooming stage, near by: The black bird's eyes were trailing, the path the blue jay's made,

Then flying in formation, they parked there, unafraid: I routed them so quickly . . . I gave them quite a fright,

And maybe, they were hungry, but they disappeared from sight: No doubt you'll think the thought is strange . . .

But still, it's true of men . . . A common need makes strangers, sometimes, the closest kin:

Too, God has made the matter clear, And nothing . . . could be stranger, Than ox and lion . . . who'll someday dine, IN PEACE . . .

From . . . THE SAME MANGER!

EIGHT AT A TIME

By WALTER B. HENDRICKSON JR.

On June 14, an Air Force Titan III-C, like the one shown in the picture, launched eight satellites at the same time. This is the first time that so many satellites weighing so much (100 pounds each) have been sent so far into space. Seven of the eight satellites were for a military communications satellite network and the eighth was a gravity-gradient experiment.

The gravity gradient satellite had two 52 foot long booms which were extended after it was in orbit. The scientists hoped the earth's gravity would balance the satellite so that one arm would always point toward earth.

Although the military communication satellites are not in quite so high an orbit as the civilian Early Bird they are high enough to stay in range for almost a day. Early Bird which is 22,300 miles above earth takes 24 hours to orbit earth so it appears to always be in the same spot in the sky.

Move Like Echo The military comsats, on the other hand, move across the sky like Echo, only much more slowly. This is actually an advantage for a military satellite since it's not so easy for the enemy to zero in on.

The military want a Comsat of their own so that they will be free to use it whenever they need to without breaking in on the civilian broadcasts. Such interruptions would make it impossible to keep the military communications secret.

Dark Blue Each of the eight satellites launched by the Titan III-C is a 24-sided structure made of aluminum covered with 8,000 silicon solar cells. With their protective artificial sapphire covers these solar cells give the satellites a dark blue appearance. These solar batteries convert the sun's rays into electricity which is fed into storage batteries inside the satellite.

From there it goes to power the satellite's equipment which picks up weak radio signals transmitted to it, amplifies them and relays them back to earth.

Being Tested The Seven-satellite relay network is now being tested. In about nine months it will go into regular service relaying messages around the earth, although it could begin carrying a few in a few weeks.

If these first seven satellites work satisfactorily the Defense Department plans to launch eight more in August followed by a third batch next spring. The satellites are provided with an automatic cut-off system that will stop their operation at the end of six years. Such automatic cut-offs are common for satellites (although they usually have shorter periods) to prevent the most useful radio bands from being clogged by satellite transmissions that have served their purpose.

The Library of Congress has more than 60,000 items in its collection of American folk songs, including records as well as books. Much of this collection is due to the efforts of John A. Lomax, who did much to set the tone for the study of American folk songs as a field collector, editor, publisher, popularizer and publicizer.

JERRY'S DISCOVERY

By John Rankin

The elderly eccentric Mr. Ike fails to answer a summons about his mule and so is put in jail but soon escapes. Since he is a former prospector it seems doubtful that he will be found in the hills. Jerry's mother worries about the old man's safety and his father agrees to see that arrangements are made to insure that the old man and his mule will have no more trouble with the law if he can be found. Jerry slips out and succeeds in locating Mr. Ike in an old Indian cave. The elderly man said reflectively, "But what brings you out here at such an hour? Slip out and leave yer pa and ma in bed asleep, eh?"

"Yeah, sort of, I guess," Jerry admitted with a modest grin. "But I wanted to get up here ahead of the sheriff and . . ."

Ike Worried A look of deep concern crossed the old man's scraggy features. "So the sheriff feller is still looking for me so he can lock me up in his jail again, eh?" he sputtered. "Well he'll never find me! I'll live my days out up here in the mountains where nature intended that a man live — where the air is free — and where a man can turn his old pack mule out to pasture without some lawman breathing down his neck!"

"But you don't have to worry about all that now, Mr. Ike," Jerry declared. "The sheriff ain't coming up here to take you to jail. He's bringing you a pardon from the judge!"

A glint of caution showed in the old prospector's faded eyes. "It could be a double-cross, son. Most likely some gimnick the sheriff feller has thought Mexico City during the Mexi-up just so he can get his hands on me."

The Keukenhof flower gardens of Holland are famous for their collection of tulips.

Gen. Winfield Scott captured Mexico City during the Mexican War.

Rescue Of

Tennessee Warblers

By Emma Mae Leonhard

Nesting birds sometimes appeal more to people than the identification of birds. This spring we have had more inquiries about the problems of nesting birds than usual. They have had problems too: heavy rains have drowned baby birds blown out of their nests by the strong winds.

Many nests have dropped to the soggy ground. The two numerous grackles have also preyed upon birds' eggs and baby birds.

Sometimes we are asked what to do for crippled birds or for baby birds found out of the nest. In most cases it is very difficult to answer those questions intelligently.

Special Baby Diet The feeding of baby birds is a frustrating problem; babies, like humans, often need a special diet.

ial diet. Usually, after the kindest treatment, the baby finally dies. Perhaps it is best to put the baby back into the nest, hoping that the parents will find it.

If it has outgrown its nest, putting it up in a bush or tree out of the way of cats and predators and hoping that nature will take care of it are the wisest methods. Nature seems to be the best healer of nature.

Occasionally an adult bird knicks itself out, frequently breaking its neck. At times it may recover consciousness and later fly away as good as new, provided a cat hasn't already found it.

Averting Tragedy Such a tragedy can be averted if a rescuer places the bird in a safe location until it is able to fly. This was the wise procedure which saved two Tennessee Warblers that were found helpless on Lafayette street.

Mrs. Jim Hyatt's little daughter Leslie saw them and, thinking that they were sick baby birds, put them in a tiny cage. Mrs. Hyatt called to find out what to do for them. When she and Leslie and Mrs. Robert Milburn and her daughter Tracy brought them to my garden, the tiny olive-green-backed warblers were already becoming more active.

Hear Singers As we walked through the garden, we heard the songs of Tennessee Warblers in the trees. Perhaps the rescued ones only a couple of hours a night.

At least they showed a desire to join the singers. Mrs. Hyatt opened the door of the little cage. One bird immediately flew out and on up into the nearby Mountain Ash. The second one at first clung to the cage; but, when it was helped to the opening it followed its companion.

Nature, with the kind help of human beings, had restored two more Tennessee Warblers to their flock on their way North to their nesting places.

WORLD SERIES It was World Series time and thanks to Mickey Mantle the Yankees were in first place. The Yankees were playing the Dodgers at Busch Stadium. So here's what happened.

Roger Maris was first to bat. He blasted one down first base line, and doubled. Then came Yogi Berra. He bunted and got to first. Then came Mantle. He hit with all his power and knocked a homer. The Dodgers were up. They got one run. The coaches just gave two innings to play, so the Yankees won. Mark Black, Second grade Lincoln School

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Notes and comment on the Hollywood scene—

Jimmy Durante's life may be the next show business biography to appear on the Broadway stage. During a recent visit here, former MGM chief Dore Schary discussed with Durante and his agents his proposal for a musical play based on the comedian's earlier years. Schary should know his subject; back in the 1930s he wrote gags for Durante's radio show.

If the stage biography succeeds, it will undoubtedly lead to a film version.

Now two James Bond movies are shooting at once. "Casino Royale," first of the Ian Fleming books, which Charles Feldman bought before the Bondomania, is still filming in England after months of production. Unable to secure the services of Sean Connery, Feldman is having a series of stars impersonate Bond.

"You Only Live Twice" has also started filming in England, with Connery in his customary role. The company will shift to Japan later this summer.

Edward G. Robinson appeared in public for the first time since his accident and operation. He showed up at the "Torn Curtain" preview looking hale and hearty, and chortled over the line by an Iron Curtain thug who commented that a situation in the movie was "just like an Edward G. Robinson movie."

"Torn Curtain" turned out to be, as the master predicted, "Vintage Hitchcock." It's a welcome return to his suspense-and-chase films. And the bed scene of Julie Andrews and Paul Newman will indeed pop the eyes of the "Mary Poppins" fans.

NEW YORK (AP) — The interest rate war has swung into the field of politics. It now lines up the easy money army against the tight money forces in both the administration and the Congress, the housing and lumber industries against the big banks, and to a degree the financial institutions against the federal government's fiscal authorities.

As if all this wasn't scrambled enough, the interest rate war in the United States has some international repercussions. The U.S. dollar and the English pound sterling are linked to a large degree as international trade settlement currencies. And rising interest rates declared Thursday in London will have some effect on the tight money market in the United States.

At home the quarrel between the financial institutions and the government is brought to a head by Treasury Secretary Henry H. Fowler's suggestion that the Congress check the growing interest rate war between the banks and the savings and loans associations.

The quarrel is largely this: the banks say that the high interest rates fostered by the monetary authorities (primarily the Federal Reserve Board) has been designed to curb inflation and keep an exuberant business boom from becoming a runaway one.

But the banks charge that the monetary authorities are being made to carry all the load and the fiscal authorities none of it. The fiscal measures to control inflation would include either cutting government spending or raising federal taxes, or both.

Until now the interest rate war has been between the commercial banks on the one hand (especially the big ones in the major financial centers) and the mutual savings banks and the savings and loan associations on the other.

Step by step they have been raising the amounts of interest or dividends they will pay. The object: to lure savers into entrusting money to this or the other type of institution. The reason: the growing demand for loans of all kinds has left the banks short of lendable funds.

And as savings were lured to the banks by higher interest rates, or into the bond market by higher yields, savings and loans associations have become short of funds to meet the demand for mortgages or to lend to the construction industry while it is building new houses. This mortgage fund shortage is one of the reasons home building has declined. And the drop in building activity is now hurting the lumber industry and others that supply the builders.

The U.S. dollar and the English pound sterling are linked to a large degree as international trade settlement currencies. And rising interest rates declared Thursday in London will have some effect on the tight money market in the United States.

At home the quarrel between the financial institutions and the government is brought to a head by Treasury Secretary Henry H. Fowler's suggestion that the Congress check the growing interest rate war between the banks and the savings and loans associations.

The quarrel is largely this: the banks say that the high interest rates fostered by the monetary authorities (primarily the Federal Reserve Board) has been designed to curb inflation and keep an exuberant business boom from becoming a runaway one.

But the banks charge that the monetary authorities are being made to carry all the load and the fiscal authorities none of it. The fiscal measures to control inflation would include either cutting government spending or raising federal taxes, or both.

Until now the interest rate war has been between the commercial banks on the one hand (especially the big ones in the major financial centers) and the mutual savings banks and the savings and loan associations on the other.

Step by step they have been raising the amounts of interest or dividends they will pay. The object: to lure savers into entrusting money to this or the other type of institution. The reason: the growing demand for loans of all kinds has left the banks short of lendable funds.

And as savings were lured to the banks by higher interest rates, or into the bond market by higher yields, savings and loans associations have become short of funds to meet the demand for mortgages or to lend to the construction industry while it is building new houses. This mortgage fund shortage is one of the reasons home building has declined. And the drop in building activity is now hurting the lumber industry and others that supply the builders.

Robert Bradney, toastmaster, introduced Jewell Mann, superintendent of District 117, who discussed some of the changes in the local school system in recent years. Mr. Bradney also presented Harris Rowe, a member of the class who now is the Republican candidate for the post of treasurer of Illinois, who talked briefly about some of the humorous experiences he has had on the campaign trail.

A memorial service for the 11 members of the group who have died was conducted by Curtis Schillerstrom.

Mothballed Ships Are Being Readied For Use

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — The big black and white sign at dockside admonishes: "Quiet please! Uncle Sam's ships are resting here."

Once again some of these retired warships, after a Rip Van Winkle sleep in a corner of the big Norfolk Navy Yard, are going back to war—Viet Nam.

In more than a dozen anchorages across the country, other ships, both warships and merchant vessels, are beginning a new life, with new journeys to war. These ships have been preserved for just such a need by the Maritime Administration and the Navy.

These are the "Mothball Fleets," dating back to the end of World War II, serving even while they stand and wait. The call first came when the Korean War broke out. It came again at the time of the closing of the Suez Canal, and it is being sounded anew from Southeast Asia.

The ghostlike quiet of peaceful times is broken now by the purposeful noise that reverses the process which put the ships to sleep.

Need Men

"All we need are men," says Cmdr. Frank Kalasinsky, proud of the condition of the laid-up warships under his command at Norfolk. Most of them are destroyers, but there are some rocket ships, various types of landing craft.

Kalasinsky, 51, is retiring after nearly 31 years in the Navy. "They're putting ME in mothballs," he says. "My successor, Cmdr. Cecil Wood, feels the same way he does about the reserve ships. 'They can do a job,' says Wood.

There's the same sort of enthusiasm shown by Almon (Al)

Briggs, 48, acting fleet superintendent for 300 merchant ships at the Maritime Administration berths in the James River of Virginia.

"Look at those ships," Briggs said on a boat ride around the James River reserve fleet. "Some of them have been there 20 years, but they are still good. Some weren't used more than two years."

Maritime Administration officials and the Navy have learned a lot about ways to preserve ships since World War II. Vessels can be kept in such good shape they can be made ready for sea in six to eight weeks.

A year ago the Maritime Administration got its first call for Viet Nam supply ships — a total of 101 ships and a $40-million job. The order is being filled in groups of 25.

These cargo ships are not fast, but they can carry huge amounts of arms, ammunition, medical supplies, food, clothing and other equipment. Ninety-eight per cent of what goes to Viet Nam goes by ship, even in these days of air freight.

Costs have been going up. At the time of the Korean War, 150 merchant ships were taken out of the reserve. It cost an average of $250,000 to put them into service. Today the figure is $400,000 per ship.

In addition to the 101 merchant ships for Viet Nam, the Navy has pulled 24 warships from its reserve. Three are rocket ships, one a fire support ship, two are small aircraft carriers for transporting planes, one is a repair ship and 17 are landing ships.

The Navy's mothball fleet numbers approximately 600 ships, mostly destroyers, dispersed in six groups: at Bremerton, Wash., Mare Island and San Diego, Calif.; Norfolk; Orange, Tex.; and Philadelphia.

There are four battleships in reserve — the New Jersey, Iowa and Wisconsin at Philadelphia, and the Missouri at Bremerton. For a time there was talk that one of the battleships might be reactivated for heavy shelling along the Viet Nam coast. However, Adm. David L. McDonald, chief of naval operations, said in May that it had been decided the idea was "not worthwhile under present circumstances."

Eight Areas

The Maritime Administration, a part of the Commerce Department, has charge of the National Defense Reserve Fleet, which keeps its mothballed ships in eight berthing areas. There are a total of 1,365 ships, of which 441 are preserved as useful to national defense and 524 are destined for scrap.

The preserved ships include 336 naval auxiliaries, 341 dry cargo vessels, tankers, refrigerators ships and tugs, and 134 passenger-cargo ships.

The Maritime Administration figures it costs from $1,500 to $5,000 per year to preserve a ship. The hull, decks and super-structures are sealed and then coated with special preservatives once each two years. Cargo holds, living quarters and other inside spaces are cleaned and coated every four years.

If you wonder why South rebid a four card diamond suit instead of raising his partner's clubs the answer is that they were using the Wolff convention. This provides that if a player who has responded one over one rebids to three clubs over his partner's two no-trump rebid, a three diamond rebid is required.

The idea of the convention gives a player who makes a horrible response, such as North's one spade, a chance to get off the hook. With a spade bid North would have continued to three spades and South would have had to pass. With his actual hand North simply dropped the bidding at three diamonds.

Of course if North had passed at one diamond South would have played the hand right there. This would have been fine in this case. On other occasions North's pass would allow East and West to get into the bidding successfully. Or, if South happened to have the right sort of hand for spades, the spade response would have led to a successful spade contract. In fact it is possible to set up plenty of South hands that will produce a spade game opposite North's collection of nothing.

South has several ways to make three diamonds. The simple way is to win the trump opening in his own hand. He takes his ace of hearts, ruffs a heart in dummy, comes back to his hand with a high club, ruffs his last heart and pauses for breath.

Then he plays trumps and eventually loses two clubs, one spade and the ace of trumps.

Vietnamese Have Been At War For 25 Years

EDITOR'S NOTE — The idea of 25 years of continuing war is so alien to American experience that it shakes credulity. But the people of Viet Nam have been engaged in such chaos for a quarter of a century. Here is an intimate look at what it has done to the people. The writer, Malcolm W. Browne, is a Pulitzer Prize-winning veteran observer of the scene who formerly was AP Saigon correspondent and now is a free-lance writer.

By MALCOLM W. BROWNE
SAIGON, South Viet Nam
(AP) — An 11-year-old boy was child, and her husband, the Viet Cong commander, has not been home since before his son was born. In dense, malarial jungle a few dozen miles northeast of Saigon, armies are clawing their way along trails, fighting, and bleeding and burning. For the American casualties there is a swift helicopter ride to an aid station or hospital, and even the United States is only a day away.

Decision
For many Vietnamese, whether they fight on the Viet Cong or government side, the question of life or death must be decided right there in the jungle. 3rd Lt. Huynh Thach Thuong, 27, is a medical officer in the Saigon government army. He works at a compound in Long Khanh Province about 30 miles northeast of Saigon, saving as many lives as he can. 2nd Lt. Ho Van Kiet, 30, is also a medical officer. He also works in a jungle compound, not more than 30 miles from Lt. Thuong. But Lt. Kiet is an officer in the Viet Cong army.

Thuong and Kiet were born three houses apart in the provincial town of Ben Tre 50 miles south of Saigon, and they are brothers-in-law. Kiet's older brother, Truc, is also a Viet Cong officer, but stationed in the Mekong River delta. It was Truc's son who was killed by the land mine. Truc, 40, has belonged to the Viet Cong and its forerunner, the Viet Minh, since 1944, and he now holds high rank. He is in charge of Viet Cong intelligence for an important sector of the Mekong Delta.

Truc's and Kiet's father, Ho Van Phuoc, was also a Viet Cong, but he is dead now, of tuberculosis he contracted during long years in the jungle. The father of their government brother - in - law, Lt. Thuong, also is dead. He was a government official in the French colonial administration until 1946, when he was kidnapped and murdered by the Viet Minh.

Thuong's family, the sons and daughters of the murdered Huynh Van Tet, will never forgive the Viet Cong. And they will never forgive the neighboring Ho family for having some Viet Cong members. Despite that, and over family objections, the two families were linked by marriage three years ago. It took an endless series of family rows and an elopement to do it.

In these two South Vietnamese families, the Huynhs and the Hos, politics, war and death have been the pattern since most of their members can remember. Among them there are Buddhists, Catholics and atheists. There are government officials and army officers, and there are Viet Cong officials and officers.

And, as in practically every family in North Viet Nam and South Viet Nam, there are sons and daughters proving that the old Romeo and Juliet story is still alive.

A member of the Huynh family, Lt. Thuong, and a member of the Ho family, Ho Thi Kimlan, are such a couple. Thuong and his shy little wife, Lan, have had three daughters in their three years of marriage. Thuong's mother has taught Lan some of the tricks of cooking savory South Vietnamese soups.

Thuong and Lan and their three daughters share a comfortable room in Saigon's teeming Tan Dinh district. It's cheap enough that the rent does not overly strain Thuong's 40 U.S. dollars-a-month pay. Of course, that pay will buy no luxuries. Recreation is listening to a Japanese transistor radio or gambling with relatives.

Short Visits
But the young officer gets home only about once a week for a couple of days. The rest of the time he is with his unit out in Long Khanh Province. He has never met his Viet Cong brothers-in-law, and accepts philosophically the fact that he might one day have to kill one or the other of them.

Nearly every man in Viet Nam with a secondary school or college education is drafted into the army as an officer, and officers must stay in a lot longer than the three-year minimum for enlisted men. Thuong was a school teacher when he was drafted three years ago, and he will be at least three years more before he will be able to leave the army and return to his old job.

Thuong's mother, the widow of his murdered father, lives in an adjacent room, helping out with little gifts of money and any other way she can manage. The family house in Ben Tre has been sold.

In 1949, Lan's mother was on her way home to Ben Tre from Saigon, and was waiting to take the ferry across the north branch of the wide Mekong River at My Tho. A careening French army truck hit her and killed her instantly.

Lan's father, who was in the jungle with the Viet Minh, asked the Communist high command for permission to attend his wife's funeral. Permission was denied. By then, the old man had become an important commissar-Viet Minh treasurer for all Kien Hoa Province — and apparently the leaders could not spare him.

It broke the old man's heart, and his health was already wrecked. In 1953, obviously dying of tuberculosis, old Ho Van Phuoc finally was allowed to leave the jungle and return to French-occupied Ben Tre. He died there three years later, at least seeing the victory of the Viet Minh at Dien Bien Phu.

By the time Phuoc's wife was killed by the French truck at the ferry crossing, she had borne him eight sons and three daughters. In 1944, Phuoc wanted one of his sons to join him in the jungle with the guerrillas, and he sent word to Ben Tre that Truc, the third son, should come. That was how Truc became a Viet Cong.

When the war ended at the Geneva agreements of 1954, all Communist forces were ordered to leave South Viet Nam to be "regrouped" in North Viet Nam — the new "Democratic Republic of Viet Nam."

Truc was one of these troops, so he left his homeland in the south for the first time. He rose rapidly through the ranks in Hanoi, and was sent for training abroad, successively in France, England and Communist China. In China he was taught the arts of military intelligence.

In 1964, Truc finally returned to his native Mekong River delta, but not the warmth of his family. His wife still has not seen him in 11 years, and his son is now dead. But Truc now commands Viet Cong intelligence operations over a wide area that includes much of his old homeland — Kien Hoa Province.

The seventh of the Ho sons entered the Viet Cong in a different way.

In the late 1950s, young Ho Van Kiet was a student in Saigon, a newcomer from the provinces to the bright lights of the big city. He met and promptly fell in love with a beautiful young coed in his college class.

This girl was a Viet Cong cadre, and she made political conversion the price of her love. Kiet joined the Viet Cong.

In 1960, Kiet was drafted into the government army as an officer, since he had a college education. He was thus a 3rd lieutenant in the Saigon army, but also was working for the Viet Cong.

Later he deserted from the army and went to the D Zone jungle, to become a full-time Viet Cong fighting man. Kiet's wife, a Viet Cong second lieutenant in her own right, quickly joined him in the jungle with their daughter.

Never Knew
"Of my two Viet Cong brothers," Lan says, "I worry most about Kiet. I'm afraid he is sure to be killed out there. My father, who is dead, I never really knew, and my other Viet Cong brother, Truc, left the house when I was only six, so I don't really know him, either."

"For me the only people who matter anymore are my husband and my three daughters."

One has the feeling that politics are not very important for either Thuong or Lan. Both are 27 years old, born in 1939. That was the year World War II began, and also was the beginning of more or less continuous war in Viet Nam.

Both the Ho and Huynh families will go on fighting, of course.

On Lan's side, besides her two Viet Cong brothers there are two brothers working as civil servants for the Saigon government, one in the government army, and one in the air force. They also are at war with brothers Kiet and Truc.

In Thuong's family, there are two brothers in the government army, one as a government inelligence agent, and two others as civil servants. Everyone in Viet Nam ends up being committed to one side or the other, in one way or another, including the women and children.

NEW YORK (AP) — Dick Stuart's pinch single in the 11th inning scored Ron Fairly with the winning run as the Los Angeles Dodgers edged the New York Mets 4-3 Friday night.

Stuart, claimed as a free agent by the Dodgers after being released by the Mets last month, lined his hit off Jack Hamilton after Fairly had walked and moved to third on Jim Lefebvre's double.

The Mets tied the game in the eighth when Larry Elliott singled, moved to second on Cleon Jones' sacrifice, went to third on Ken Boyer's long fly and scored on a passed ball by catcher John Roseboro.

Bonjour Hanover To Compete In State Fair Race

SPRINGFIELD — Bonjour Hanover possessing impressive talents of her own and the distinction of being a full sister of champion Bret Hanover will compete here during the six days of mile track harness racing at the Illinois State Fair next month.

While harness fans rave about her brother Bret, winner of 51 races in 54 starts and the world's top money winning pacer (approximately $720,000), Bonjour is building a nifty reputation among distaff pacers.

Outstanding in her two-year-old performance was the world record for fillies of her age in winning the Breeders Filly Stake here with successive miles of 1:59 and 1:59 1/5th. She had 15 triumphs in 19 starts and earned $68,272.

Off to a fine start this year, Bonjour captured a recent stake race at Saratoga, N.Y., going the mile in 1:59 4/5ths for her regular driver Stanley Dancer.

Quick Starter

Dancer describes Bonjour as a good-sized, ruggedly built filly with a near perfect gait. Like her brother Bret she has the ability to race swiftly away from the starting gate or from behind as the strategy of the race requires.

With a month of racing before she appears here on August 16, the big filly should be in sharp form. In the Review Futurity on August 17 Dancer has named American Adios for the three-year-old pacing division. He has named Lito Dean to the Greyhound Stake for two-year-old trotters and has Mightly Ad and Nevelle Dancer in the Little Pat for two-year-old pacers.

Dancer, the first harness driver in history to win more than $1,000,000 in purses in a single season, likes to compete at Springfield. Last year he won the Review Futurity with the famed Noble Victory and in past years won important races with Lady Ann Reed and Honie Rainbow.

Harness racing will begin on August 12 and continue through August 18 but there will be no racing on Sunday, August 14.

Redlegs Sweep To Double Win For 4 In Row

The Jacksonville Redlegs rode a three home-run attack to victory in the first game then got two-hit pitching from Bob Vinyard in the nightcap to sweep a pair of games from Brighton, at the State Hospital Friday night.

Gary Spangenberg and Wayne Smith slugged three-run homers and Fred Curtis a two-run blast in the opener as the Redlegs came from a 7-1 deficit to post a 10-8 triumph. The eventual winning run crossed in the fifth when Sonny Hickox singled, Max Greer was safe on an error and Ron Tomhave singled. Curtis' two-run homer, touched by an outfielder, iced the contest.

Vinyard allowed only two scattered safeties in the 4-1 nightcap. The Redlegs took the lead in the fourth when Curtis walked, Bob Speaks sacrificed him to second and Hickox singled.

The twinbill sweep ran the Redlegs' winning streak to four games and moved their season's mark to 19-24.

Roberts Hurls Cubs By Pittsburgh, 5-4

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Robin Roberts pitched Chicago to a 5-4 victory over Pittsburgh Friday night and sent the Pirates into second place in the National League.

Ralston Defeated In Clay Courts, May Turn Pro

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Dennis Ralston, the nation's top-ranked tennis star, was knocked out of the National Clay Courts Tennis Championship Friday and said later that this would be his last season as an amateur player.

Claim Football Practices Need To Be Changed

CHICAGO (AP) — Unless outmoded training practices are changed, some high school and college football players face the possibility of death in hot-weather workouts; a group of medical experts said Friday.

Comments on heat fatigue, heat exhaustion and heat stroke were made at a news conference by the American Medical Association's Council on the Medical Aspects of Sports.

Heat fatigue dulls the athletes' alertness and makes him vulnerable to injury. The other two heat illnesses can result in serious physical harm and even death, the experts said.

However, heat exhaustion and heat stroke are preventable through control of various factors in conditioning programs.

The following list of suggestions was offered to help coaches prevent heat exhaustion and heat stroke during hot-weather athletic activity:

1. Require a careful medical history and checkup prior to the first practice of the season.
2. Schedule workouts during cooler morning and early evening hours in hot weather.
3. Acclimate athletes to hot-weather activity by carefully graduated practice schedules.
4. Provide rest periods of 15 to 30 minutes during workouts of an hour or more in hot weather.
5. Supply clothing that is white to reflect heat, brief, loose, and comfortable to permit heat escape, and permeable to moisture to allow heat loss via sweat.
6. Furnish extra salt and water in recommended amounts during hot weather.
7. Watch athletes carefully for signs of trouble, particularly the determined athlete who may not report discomfort.
8. Know what to do in case of such an emergency, including immediate first aid practices and prearranged procedures for obtaining medical care.

FAMED DRAG RACER DOWN BUT NOT OUT

RICHLANDS, Va. (AP) — A drag racing driver who lost both legs in a July 4 accident at a raceway here may be temporarily paralyzed—but far from out.

"I'm going back to racing just as soon as I get my artificial legs," said Doug Rose, 29, a Wisconsin native. "I'm probably biting off more than I can chew, but I've still got my knees, so learning to walk on the artificial limbs shouldn't be too hard."

Rose was driving his Green Monster, in which he once hit an unofficial 282 miles an hour, when the accident happened.

"I've got a lot of life to live yet," he said Friday from his hospital bed, "and I see no reason for not living it to the fullest."

Two Accidents
On State Roads

Persons in four vehicles escaped injury Friday night in two separate accidents on state highways around the Jacksonville area.

According to reports filed by state police, two cars were damaged three miles south of the city on U.S. 67 about 8:30 p.m.

A northbound car, operated by James M. Reardon, 16, of Murrayville, struck a southbound auto, driven by Wayne G. Himes, 26, of Essexville, Mo.

Reardon said that when he applied his brakes to avoid striking an obstacle on the highway, his brakes pulled him into the path of the southbound car. About 10:30 p.m., three vehicles were damaged three miles west of Winchester on U.S. 36-54.

State police reported that a car, driven by Robert Millsap, 34, of route one, Winchester, was pulling a trailer. Officers said that household articles fell from the trailer.

An eastbound car, operated by Donald Dooley, 61, of Carrollton, Mo. was unable to stop and collided with the household articles that escaped from the Millsap trailer.

LAUNDRY PATRON ON MEND AFTER
'TREAK' ACCIDENT

BEARDSTOWN—Willard Livingston, 36, of Frederick hopes to be back on the job as a carpenter at the Oscar Mayer project here soon despite injuries which required 80 stitches to be taken in his arms after he was cut in an unusual accident.

Livingston went to the Fourth Street Laundromat here Sunday morning to wash some of his work clothes. After getting the clothes in the machine, he decided to go across the street to the drug store.

He says he was blinded by the bright sun, mistook the window for the door and shoved his arms through a large plate glass pane.

Other patrons at the laundry applied tourniquets and rushed Livingston to the hospital where, his mother says, 80 stitches were taken to close the wounds.

She says he is recovering nicely and hopes to resume his work "next week."

ARFONS TRIES FOR RECORD
BONNEVILLE SALT FLATS, Utah (AP) — Art Arfons of Akron, Ohio, will have 13 days on the Bonneville Salt Flats to regain the world land speed record from Craig Breedlove Aug. 7-19.
Breedlove set the record at 600.601 miles per hour last year. William D. Backman, secretary of the Bonneville Speedway Association, said Tuesday Breedlove has not requested time on the Salt Flats this year, apparently waiting the outcome of Arfons' test.

FATHER'S DAY must be every day for Jordan's King Hussein judging from the obvious royal delight as he hugs his two sons, Abdullah, left, and Feisal, right. The king and his British-born consort, Princess Muna, begin a 10-day state visit to Britain July 19.

A STAR RETURNS—Katy Jurado, portraying the mother of George Maharis, gives him a farewell embrace in this scene from the new film, "A Covenant With Death." The role is the Mexican star's first in a Hollywood-made picture since 1959, but she has been busy in international film circles.
